Aldermen Approve Compromise Made With City Banks

Alderman Haines Said Certificates Should Have Been Paid When Due For If It Was Illegal to Pay Them Then It Was Still Illegal To Do So —Council Met Specially to Legalize Mayor's Act.

After Mayor Eugene B. Carey had the city treasurer pay the certificates of indebtedness due the State of New New York National Bank and the Kingston Savings Bank, which had been due since last March and which totaled the sum of $60,000, it was discovered that the mayor had not the authority to settle claims against the city, but that was the function of the Common Council. So to legalize the action already taken and that of the three other banks holding certificates of indebtednes the Common Council met in special session Monday evening, and unanimously voted to approve the compromise made with the banks by Mayor Carey.

Alderman Haines when the resolution of approval came up for a vote, said he believed that these certificates of indebtedness should have been paid when due last March, for if it was illegal to pay them at that time it was just as illegal to pay them now. He said he voted "yes" on the resolution for the banks should have their money and should have had it several months ago.

Alderman Doheny said it was an honest debt incurred by the city and should be paid and that was why he voted in favor of the adoption of the resolution.

Before the resolution was adopted it had been referred to the auditing committee and a recess taken by the council to give the committee an opportunity to submit a report.

When the auditing committee returned to the council chambers President C. J. Heiselman, of the committee, said that the situation that developed in the committee meeting was this: That it was asked to submit a favorable report on the compromise made when on October 5, the State of New York National Bank and Trust Company and the Kingston Savings Bank had been paid. After paying out this $60,000 it was found that the mayor had no authority to pay claims or negotiate settlements, as that was the function of the aldermen. For that reason this special meeting of the council had been called.

President Heiselman said the auditing committee had asked Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan to place his signature on the report of approval together with the committee, but he had declined to do so as he did not approve of the manner in which the matter had been handled and that the banks should first sign a release before being paid.

Corporation Counsel Flanagan said he wanted to make his position perfectly clear in the matter. He had no previous knowledge that two of the banks had already been paid without signing any release to the city. Mr. Flanagan said the debt was a moral obligation and ought to be paid but that he was not the moral advisor of the council. He said that morally he approved of the bank settlement all the way through, but legally he did not approve of releasing the money to the banks without the banks first signing a release.

The resolution and report of the auditing committee approving the resolution were adopted by unanimous vote. The resolution provides for the payment of $25,000 to the Rondout Savings Bank; $25,000 to the First National Bank; $20,000 to the State of New York National Bank and Trust Company; $40,000 to the Kingston Savings Bank and $40,000 to the Ulster County Savings Institution. By the provisions of the resolution the mayor and city treasurer are authorized and empowered to compromise the matter and pay the certificates.

To Appropriate $4,300

When the emergency work relief committee made up its budget of proposed projects before asking the common council recently for an additional appropriation of $55,000 it forgot to include in the budget an item of salaries for the office help and investigators amounting to $4,300 and for that reason were submitting a request that that amount be appropriated.

The finance committee through its chairman, Alderman Epstein, wanted it made plain that it was reporting favorably on the appropriation but that the work relief committee should have asked for $59,300 and not $55,000 as it did. The office force and workers were entitled to their pay and that was why the committee favored the adoption of the request.

The report was adopted and a certificate of indebtedness will be issued for that amount.

Are Working Together

Mayor Carey who was present at the meeting said that the Board of Public Works and the work relief committee were working together on the various projects and that the board was placing men at work from lists of names submitted by the work relief.

What About Boulevard

Alderman Epstein wanted to know what had happened to the Boulevard project.

Mayor Carey said that was a real big job, the biggest that the city had tackled in a long, long time. There were many hills and curves that had to be eliminated. The first route laid out took in a number of properties, and there had been difficulty in getting rights of way adjusted and for that reason a new alignment had

Brooklyn Housewife Mysteriously Slain

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—The "ride" murder of a housewife, slain mysteriously with a red-handled dagger, puzzled Brooklyn authorities today.

Mrs. Gemma Pignataro, 36-year-old mother of five children, was killed last night some time after she set out for home after caring for a neighbor's sick child.

Her body was found at 10 p. m., in an automobile that had smashed against a tree in Dyker Heights. At her feet lay the knife that had severed her jugular vein.

Detectives, moving swiftly, questioned her husband and two other men, one of them the owner of the wrecked car. All denied knowledge of the killing. Delving into the woman's history, the police obtained information that led them to suspect gangsters. They considered other theories, too; one was that she might have been killed by some one who sought to attack her.

The detectives said she once had a brother, Louis Ribis, who was right hand man for the late Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gang magnifico and one-time ally of Al Capone. This brother was murdered ten years ago in New Jersey. The dead woman's husband, Fiori, was wounded in 1914 by an unidentified foe.

Scratched hands indicated that Mrs. Pignataro struggled fiercely against death. Police believe that in the struggle the killers lost control of the car which hit a tree. Two men were seen to flee from it after the crash.

Early last night, Mrs. Pignataro left home, saying she wanted to take care of the ailing child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pagano. When she was about to leave the Pagano house, detectives were told, Joseph Pagano offered to take her home in his brother John's car. He told police, however, that after they left the house, he found the car would not start, and that he took her to a street car instead.

It was in John Pagano's car that the body was found. Both he and Joseph insisted the auto must have been stolen.

BLINDNESS BROUGHT DREAMS OF YOUTH

Perth, Western Australia, Oct. 11 (AP).—Many years ago whenever young Charlie Sparkes went to a dance, he looked for a girl named Annie. She was pretty and graceful, and there was no one else with whom he liked to dance so well.

Then he joined the gold rush to the west. He was never to see Annie again for one day a piece of quartz struck him in the eye and destroyed his sight.

Charlie Sparkes, old and blind, was sitting in the Braille Society's home the other day.

A woman joined him. She, too, was blind.

She talked to him of the days when she was a light-hearted girl, 50 years ago. She told him of the dances she had been to in Melbourne, and of a young man she always danced with there. "His name," she said, "was Charlie Sparkes."

They meet often now. They cannot see white hair and wrinkles. To each the other is young and handsome—gay, dashing Charlie Sparkes, and beautiful Annie.

COURT OF APPEALS HOLDS FATE OF JAPANESE BUTLER

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today holds the fate of Gentaro Akiyama, the little Japanese butler who is under sentence of death for the slaying of J. William Schatz, his rich employer, at his Poughkeepsie mansion last December.

The court listened for 90 minutes yesterday afternoon to arguments over Akiyama's appeal, and adjourned to announce its decision later. Akiyama's defense in the trial early this year was insanity. His lawyer, William G. Moore of New York, told the court of appeals that the trial judge, Supreme Court Justime Graham Witschief, failed to charge the jury to give the defendant the benefit of any "reasonable doubt" as to his sanity.

Japanese Continue Onslaught.

Mukden, Manchuria, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Japanese army, with bombing airplanes, cavalry, infantry and light artillery continued today its onslaught against the thirty thousand former warriors of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang in the Tungpiao area who for months have played havoc with the Hailung-Mukden-Antung railway.

Republican Club To Meet Thursday

The second regular meeting of the Republican Club will be held at the Servicenter, Broadway and Pine Grove avenue, Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Another interesting program of speeches and entertainment such as offered at the first meeting of the club last week will feature the session.

Officers elected at the last meeting will be installed. Among the speakers will be Harry H. Fleaming, J. Edward Conway, candidate for member of assembly, and John H. Saxe, candidate for sheriff.

Kiwanians Present "A Woman's Way" At H. S. Auditorium

Annual Kiwanis Entertainment Will Be Held Tonight and Tomorrow Evening—Expect Capacity Crowds.

One of the season's entertainment feature will be held at the high school auditorium tonight and tomorrow evening beginning at 8:30 o'clock, when the annual Kiwanis play—this year, "A Woman's Way"—will be offered for public approval with a new York city cast composed of the famous Hughes Players, headed by Joseph H. Hughes, author, producer and actor.

Each year the Kiwanis Club selects a worthy entertainment to present to the public as a method to raise funds to carry on the welfare work of the club, including the furnishing of some 30,000 bottles of milk to school children, and the maintaining of a school dental clinic. The club also furnishes a scholarship for college students, holds a field and rally day for the County 4-H Clubs of the county, and aids in special welfare activities in the city.

Admission Lowered.

This year with business in a state of uncertainty, the club also decided that the best in entertainment would be needed to attract a crowd, and after a great deal of consideration the play, "A Woman's Way," presented by the Hughes Players, was selected. In further keeping with the times a substantial reduction in price was made. Because of the limited seating capacity of the high school auditorium, it is expected by the ticket committee that the place will be filled for both performances.

Tickets are being exchanged daily at the Y. M. C. A. for reserved seats, and while a great number have been exchanged, there are still many desirable places yet untaken. Seats may also be obtained at the box office before each performance.

"A Woman's Way" is the story of a father and his son—a father who has recently lost his wife, and is in mental depression. To this pair comes a nearby feminine neighbor, who interested in the son's story, plans to aid in setting a disordered house aright. Another son, a traveler, returns home, and with the usual complications the plot moves on to a happy ending. A number of comedy parts and many clever lines turn what might have been a melodrama into a highly entertaining dramatic comedy, which if those who have seen it are correct, is entertainment of the finest type.

Kingston has few chances to view a legitimate drama on local stages with a professional cast, and it was this idea in giving the public something different and out of the ordinary, that the Kiwanis Club chose this play and is expecting a large audience for both tonight and tomorrow evening.

Insull Jailed, Gets Best Room in House

Athens, Oct. 11 (AP).—Samuel Insull, once multi-millionaire head of the greatest power and utilities organization in the world, today occupied "the best room in the house" at the Athens police station, while officials in Athens, Washington and Illinois took part in negotiations which were intended to send him back to Chicago to face indictment for embezzlement and larceny.

The "detention" which the police effected yesterday when Insull was held on technical grounds as Greek authorities looked through his passport and papers, was extended later when the American government requested the legation here to ask for his provisional arrest.

Partly through the influence of American friends and partly because of his years, his former position, and the affability he showed, the police were treating him more like a guest than a prisoner.

Insull was given the best quarters the station afforded and offered the best of food. He took only a sandwich and a glass of soda water last night, however, thanking the officers heartily for their attention.

THE REV. M. J. FITZPATRICK IS HONOR GUEST AT DINNER

The Right Rev. Monsignor Mallick J. Fitzpatrick, rector of the Mission of the Immaculate Conception, Mount Loretta, Staten Island, was honored at a dinner at the Astor last night on the completion of forty years in the priesthood and thirty-five years as rector of the mission. During this period of service at the mission Monsignor Fitzpatrick has cared for 35,000 boys and girls.

Speakers at the dinner included Alfred J. Talley, former judge of General Sessions; former City Comptroller Herman A. Metz; the Right Rev. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral; former Judge William D. Cunningham, of the Court of Claims; the Rev. John J. Hickey, rector of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Joseph, and the Rev. Michael J. Larkin, rector of the Church of St. Gabriel, New Rochelle.

Sisterhood Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel will be held in the vestry room at the temple Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. As matters of importance will be transacted a large attendance is desired.

A. A. Play Will Be Held November 18 At the High School

The annual play of the Kingston High School Athletic Association will be given in the high school auditorium on Friday evening, November 18, by the R. P. I. Players from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The three-act comedy to be presented by this dramatic club was written by Noel Coward and is entitled, "The Young Idea".

This arrangement to bring the R. P. I. Players here is something unusual. In fact it is the first time in the history of the organization of the school that the play has not been coached by the public speaking instructor and the parts played by the students. However, the cost of producing a play at the school surpassed the cost of bringing the players here, so the latter plan seemed the more favorable.

There are 14 in the well balanced cast, seven men and seven women. The men are from Rensselaer Institute and the women from Russell Sage College.

The play is a typical Coward product. Its lines are witty, carrying a rich flavor of humor throughout, and it contains an air of sophistication that is expected to appeal to the audience. The three acts are full of the vigorous life of youth, irrepressible in their desire to accomplish that which would appear impossible. The two leading characters are Gerda and Shaito. They supply all the glamor.

Noel Coward is one of the most outstanding playwrights of today. His works have been produced on Broadway and have been accepted by the public as all the great hits of the "White Way" have been. This comedy is considered one of his best and it is thought that the fine dramatic club of R. P. I. will stage it in a masterful way.

SCHWARTZ ISSUES APOLOGY FOR ROOSEVELT ATTACK

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—On the eve of his conference with Governor Roosevelt regarding the two year old unsolved Germond murder case, District Attorney John R. Schwartz, last night issued a formal apology for his statement a few days ago criticising the governor.

In a letter addressed to the governor Schwartz said:

"I regret I intimated that political motives actuated the governor in any way in asking me to come to Albany to discuss the Germond murder case. Also, the statement by me that the taxpayers of Dutchess county will be called upon to pay the expense of an inquiry was based upon a newspaper story that an inquiry had been ordered. I realize now that no inquiry has been ordered".

Schwartz, who handed the apology to newspaper men last night after he returned from Albany where he had appeared in a case before the Court of Appeals, refused to expand on the statement or to confirm the report that he had seen the governor while in Albany.

He said he would call on Governor Roosevelt at the Capitol today in response to an executive summons he received last week to discuss his investigation of the famous murder mystery.

When Schwartz, a Republican running for re-election, was first informed by newspaper men last Friday that the executive order had been issued, he gave out a statement in which he said:

"My reaction is that this comes so close to election it must be political in significance".

OVER 50,000 WANT TO HEAR COOLIDGE SPEAK

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—More than 50,000 persons, it was said at Republican state headquarters, have made application for tickets to hear former President Calvin Coolidge deliver his second speech on politics since he left the White House.

The Coolidge speech, to be delivered tonight at a Republican rally in Madison Square Garden, will open the eastern offensive of the Hoover campaign for reelection. He will begin speaking at 8:30 p. m. His speech will be broadcast.

Colonel William J. Donovan, Republican candidate for governor of New York, and George Z. Medalie, candidate for election to the senate, also will address the rally.

Factory Employment In State Increased

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—Factory employment in New York state increased 6.5 per cent in September, and factory payrolls rose 9.2 per cent, the state department of labor has reported.

In New York city employment rose 8.6 per cent and payrolls mounted 12.1 per cent, said the report issued by Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins.

The statistics were based on reports from 1,571 factories in the state.

There was continued improvement in textile mills, and employment in the food industries increased. Seasonal rises were reported in metals and clothing and millinery groups. General building contractors reported employment off 13 per cent, and miscellaneous general contractors reported a drop of eight per cent.

Civil War Rebellion Flaring Throughout China and Manchuria

Shanghai, Oct. 11 (AP).—North, south, east and west, hundreds of thousands of soldiers waged civil war and rebellion throughout China and Manchuria today, from the northern border of Manchuria to the province of Fukien on the south, and from western Szechuan province to Shantung on the east.

There were reports also of an impending uprising in Chihli province, in which Peiping is located. These reports were based on a sudden appearance from retirement of General Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian general," who recently went from his retreat in Shantung to Kalgan, west of Peiping.

This gave rise to a report that he is attempting to gather together the military leaders of the northwest for a drive against Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, former Manchurian warlard, at Peiping, to regain control of north China.

In the province of Szechuan approximately 250,000 soldiers are involved in the struggle for power among the military groups. The fighting is centered around Chengtu, the provincial capital and, together with the other troubles, is the cause of considerable uneasiness among national government officials at Nanking.

In Shantung the fighting, pillaging and murder which began more than a week ago, still is going on, in spite of appeals from local officials to the national government for protection. The struggle is between Han Fu-Chu, the provincial chairman, and Lui Chen Nien, war lord of the Chefoo area.

Entire villages were reported burned by the troops of both sides; refugees poured into Chefoo, many of them with bayonet wounds. Farmers who had rejoiced over the first bountiful crop since the civil wars of 1928 and 1929, are experiencing miserable conditions, and it is feared that large stocks of linen and thread in the hands of up-country workers in that center of the lace embroidery trade have been seized.

In Fukien province on the southeast the provincial military forces, including the famous Nineteenth Route army which put up the long defense of Shanghai against the Japanese last winter, are engaged in a bitter struggle against Communist forces and bandits.

In Manchuria the Japanese were directing two campaigns, in the north and south, against Chinese insurgents and against the regime of Henry Pu-Yi at Changchun. The drive in the south was directed against 30,000 insurgents, while in the north, around Manchuli on the Soviet border, another large force of insurgents has seized most of the Chinese Eastern Railway west of Hailar and is holding a large number of Japanese as hostages.

Lord Reading Visits Bar Association

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP).—Back in the 1870's a 14-year-old cabin boy sailed into Calcutta, scrubbing decks and polishing brass.—Half a century later, the booming salutes accorded only the emperor's viceroy greeted his return to India.

That is part of the story of the Marquis of Reading who came here today as guest of the American Bar Association. At other times he has been lawyer, statesman, diplomat.

It was as a runaway schoolboy, that Rufus Daniel Isaacs first visited Calcutta on a British schooner. Forty-seven years later he returned as viceroy and governor general and from 1921 to 1926 represented King George in directing the destinies of the seething millions who were even then in a ferment under the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi.

Before this period, the marquis had become known in the United States. During the stormy years of the war he came here as president of the Anglo-French loan mission in 1915 and three years later returned as high commissioner and special ambassador.

GARNER TO CONFER WITH ROOSEVELT IN ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—A meeting with Speaker John N. Garner, his running mate, and possible announcement of the itinerary for his trip into the south and midwest are on the program for Governor Roosevelt today.

Speaker Garner is expected in Albany some time during the day for a conference with the Democratic presidential nominee. It will be their second meeting since Mr. Roosevelt began his western trip last month. On that trip the trails of the New Yorker and the Texan crossed at Topeka, where they appeared together on the occasion of Mr. Roosevelt's "farm speech."

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, left Albany late last night to meet Speaker Garner at New York before he comes to Albany. Earlier in the night Mr. Farley, who is Governor Roosevelt's campaign manager, had been closeted with the governor mapping out the itinerary for the next trip.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Treasury receipts for October 8 were $19,077,720.38; expenditures $45,421,854.57; balance $778,821,598.22. Customs duties for eight days of October were $6,670,170.87.

Negligence Action In Supreme Court

Monday afternoon Supreme Court convened for the second week's business with Judge Bliss presiding. At the opening of court a large number of cases which have been at issue for over two years, and were not moved for trial were stricken from the calendar under the strike off rule of the court.

The jury which heard the evidence in the negligence actions brought by Willebaldina and John Brunjes against Joshua Birch and another reported a sealed verdict. For Mrs. Brunjes the jury found in the sum of $50 and for Mr. Brunjes an award of $139.50 was made. The verdict of the jury was taken by consent in the absence of one of the jurors. Brinnier and Elsworth who appeared for defendants, asked that motions be postponed until today in the event they desired to make such motions, but Mr. Elsworth stated that in all probabilities in view of the verdict there would be no motion.

An action in negligence brought by Theresa Leader against Morris Kaplan was taken up for trial. Mrs. Leader, who was a former resident of Kingston, employed in a hairdressing parlor and now resides in New York, testified that on July 16, 1930, she went to the M. Kaplan furniture store on Crown and North Front streets to purchase a stove. She entered the store by the Crown street entrance and after purchasing a stove in the stove department started to the office across a hall-way. Mr. Kaplan and a woman with her went ahead and she saw them go down two steps which connect the office floor with the hall-way. As she started down the steps she fell while on the first step. She suffered a broken ankle. She seeks to recover damages for the injury, loss of wages, fare paid for a taxi in making trips to the doctor's office, doctor's bills and also for the payments which she made to a girl who assisted her during the time she was laid up. She testified she had been receiving $20 a week and commission as a hairdresser prior to the accident and for eight weeks was laid up and after that time it was several additional weeks before she was able to work. She went to work in December following the accident. During the time she was unable to do her housework she employed a girl at $15 a week.

Judge Bernard A. Culloton appears for plaintiff and A. J. Cook for defendant.

No. 231, Annie Siegel against Grand Union Stores, Inc., a negligence action, was announced as settled. Morris Kanfer for plaintiff and Lloyd R. LeFever for defendant.

NEW FLAREUPS IN ILLINOIS COAL MINERS' STRIFE

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 11 (AP).—Ten men were held in the Christian county jail here today in connection with the latest brush with authorities in the Illinois coal miners' war.

The men, held without charge but accused by authorities of being disorderly, were arrested last night as militiamen for the second time within 12 hours dispersed pickets attempting to prevent men from working at the Peabody Coal Company mine No. 58, near here.

A group of nearly 800 pickets flanked the mine as workers emerged at closing time. Guardsmen already were on hand to maintain order. Several of the pickets, reputed members of the newly organized Progressive Miners' Union, became unruly, Guardsmen said, and refused to disperse when orders were given.

The crowd was routed after the arrests and Guardsmen were not forced to resort to tear gas as they had been earlier in the day to scatter pickets. Several hundred strikers were scattered by tear gas as the mines opened yesterday.

CITY TREASURER OF MIDDLETOWN UNDER ARREST

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—The city accounts of Middletown are being audited today following Mayor Clarence C. Van Fleet's announcement yesterday that City Treasurer Harold S. Lapoit had resigned and was under arrest on a charge of grand larceny.

A similar charge was put against Thomas Kennedy, clerk of the common council, who also resigned.

Josiah B. Stern was named acting treasurer.

Millionaires' Club To Take Ride on Bus

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (AP).—The "Millionaires' Club", composed of men who would probably have to use ten figures to total their combined wealth, is going to take a bus ride today for fun.

The occasion was the third annual northern dinner of the committee of 160, official name of what has come to be called the Millionaires' Club. It is a group of industrial and financial Titans (and some poorer men too) who spend their winters in and about Miami Beach, Fla., and who like to get together at other seasons also.

County Teachers Held Conference At New Paltz Oct. 7

Second Supervisory District of Ulster County Conference Held in Auditorium of Normal School on October 7. With Many Interesting Talks on Program.

A teachers' conference of the second supervisory district of Ulster county in charge of John U. Gillette, district superintendent, was held on Friday, October 7, in the auditorium of the New Paltz Normal School with a morning and afternoon session. The instructors in charge were Benjamin Matteson, director of training at the Normal School; Edgar V. Boyce, head of the education department of the Normal School; Cora E. Wadsworth, demonstration teacher at the Normal School; Mrs. Everett R. Tarvin, demonstration teacher at the school; Ethel MacFarlane, demonstration teacher at the school; Gertrude M. Thompson of the Kindergarten department of the Normal School, and C. F. Kearney, principal of the Marlborough High School.

Superintendent Gillette in opening the conference said there had been placed in the hands of each teacher a bulletin from the state education department setting forth the cardinal objectives in education and suggestions for attaining these objectives. These methods differed from the traditional ones and even those in practice generally. It was for the purpose of evaluating this procedure in the minds of the teachers that he had called them to the conference in the Normal Practice School so that they could see the work demonstrated by experts in this new field of educational procedure.

Mr. Matteson, director of training at the Normal School, gave a brief address on the subject of unit teaching. The heart of unit teaching method was in applying to real life everything taught in the school room. That everything taught or presented in class must be shown to be of real value to the pupil, that teaching is not teaching unless there is application to real life.

The unit teaching method utilizes two of the oldest principles of modern education. These he designated as learning by doing and utilizing many sources rather than just one text.

Principal Kearney of Marlborough presented an interesting discussion of standardized tests. He described the intelligence tests and their uses. He showed also that the diagnostic tests could be used to ascertain the cause of weak spots in the child's school work. The application of these tests in the Marlborough school was shown where they have been carried on with success for a period of three years.

Following his address a business session was held and a collection amounting to $27 was taken for the teachers' welfare fund.

Mr. Beebe gave an interesting talk explaining the purpose and possibilities of the unit method of teaching in relation to definite projects in progress in the training school at present. In the kindergarten section the interest of the majority of the children was centered in the building of bridges. Consequently "Bridges" was selected as the theme for class study. In relation to the subject trips were made to bridges in the vicinity and pictures of bridges were found and studied; stories about bridges told and plans for the building of one discussed by the children.

This type of unit teaching gives the children an opportunity to be actively interested in their school work.

The teachers were then taken on a tour of the classes to watch pupils at work which proved most interesting. Mr. Beebe described the demonstration classes interpreting the work shown and explaining how the activity method of teaching brought to the children all subject matter of the traditional method by bringing it fully motivated.

Unit Activity

The unit activity which is carried on in the fourth grade under the supervision of Miss Wadsworth grew out of the study of the Greeks. The work that grew out of it developed that interest was built up whereby the children could read more about the work which was started. It was suggested by the teacher that the children put on some kind of an entertainment based upon the work covered the past year. The children suggested that they play some of the Greek games. The aim of unit activity, said Miss Wadsworth, is not to supplant our traditional methods but to enrich and supplement them. Unit teaching can be used in the schools to a better understanding of the materials which are to be taught to the child.

Visited Fifth Grade

A number of the teachers visited the fifth grade demonstration class under the supervision of Miss Ethel McFarlane. The work in progress was the library and club part of the unit teaching program. This fifth grade consisted of three groups. One known as the sub-sixth or ungraded class was making drawings of animals from circles for use in designs. Some older boys were making library filing cases from cigar boxes.

Another group, the straight fifth, was also drawing designs for screen posters and book covers. In the third group who last year were third grade pupils and who had done summer school work, block printing was being done.

The library unit is the group activity carried on in the fifth grade. The pupils are setting up in each class room libraries maintained and ad-

Patrolmen Give To Kiwanis Funds

October 7, 1932.

The Rev. O. E. Brandorff, President, Kingston Kiwanis Club, Kingston, N. Y.

My dear Pastor Brandorff:

At a regular meeting of this association held last evening, a resolution was adopted in favor of making a contribution toward the fund which the Kiwanis Club is sponsoring for the purpose of providing milk for our school children. We hope sincerely that the benefit performances of "A Woman's Way" to be given under your auspices at the Kingston High School auditorium on October 11th and 12th will add a substantial amount to the milk fund. However, in view of the unusually heavy demands which no doubt will be made on you during the coming winter in this most worthy undertaking, we feel we would like to have a small part in helping you carry the unusually heavy load.

As directed by the resolution, and on behalf of the members of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, I take great pleasure in handing you herewith check for our contribution.

We hope you will accept our very best wishes for continued success in the humanitarian work in which you have already excelled.

Faithfully yours,
PETER KERESMAN,
President.

MILTON.

Milton, Oct. 10.—The fall meeting of the North River Presbyterial Society will be held next Friday in Marlborough. Local women will take various parts on the program. At noon luncheon will be served by the Women's Association of the Marlborough Presbyterian Church at a very small charge. Mrs. A. W. Lent of Highland is Presbyterial chairman of missionary education. Mrs. Everett LeCompte is chairman in charge of young people's work. Mrs. Adelaide Wilke of Milton is one of the vice presidents.

S. Birdsall Taber of Milton has been invited to attend the dedication of Myron Taylor Hall, Cornell University's new law building, which takes place October 15. The occasion will make the presentation to the University by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, and a graduate of the Cornell Law School with the class of 1894, of the keys to the new building, the result of his gift of $1,500,000 in 1928.

The significance of the coming national election was the timely topic of discussion at the meeting of Chapter A. P. O. E., held at the home of Mrs. Harcourt Pratt in Highland Thursday afternoon. Miss Lulu Clarke of Milton had charge of the program and the president, Mrs. Rose Seaman, presided during the business meeting.

The meeting of the Milton Reading Circle has been postponed until October 27. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Adelaide Wilke. The fact that several members wished to attend a concert in Newburgh led to the postponement.

The members of the Milton fire department held a regular meeting at the hose house last Wednesday evening. Business and other important affairs were transacted.

The Ulster County Home Bureau has taken up rag rug making as one of the courses to be taught this winter at their meetings. The rural market conducted by the ladies of Milton has much to do with this decision for it was from this market on the Willow Tree road that it was learned what a great demand there was for this kind of rugs. The Rural Market has been a success from the start.

The Campaign Puzzle

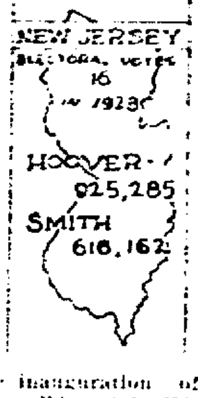

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecast

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is [illegible] states voted in the 1928 presidential election and pointing out [illegible].

New Jersey's Vote for President in 1928:

Hoover	925,285
Smith	616,162

New Jersey voted for Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, in 1912, but its record of Republicanism in presidential elections is unbroken otherwise from 1896. Republicans won by three to one in 1920 and 1924.

Prohibition has been a paramount issue since 1920, and New Jersey's only Democratic senator since the inauguration of popular election was Edward I. Edwards, chosen in 1922, an off-year, on a wet platform. Governors in non-presidential years since 1920 have been Democrats, and wets.

In the senatorial election of 1930, Dwight W. Morrow (R) defeated Alexander Simpson (D) with 691,497 votes to 401,007. Morrow's declaration for prohibition repeal largely removed that issue from the campaign.

Gov. A. Harry Moore (D) was elected governor in 1931 with 735,504 votes, against 505,451 for David Baird, Jr. (R). He succeeded Morgan F. Larson (R).

The prohibition planks of the two parties and their economic programs have been major issues in the current campaign. Republican leaders have professed a belief that a part of the personal following of Alfred E. Smith may be swung to the Republican column.

New Jersey's electoral votes are increased this year from 14 to 16.

Washington's Vote for President in 1928:

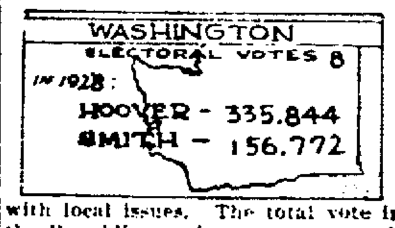

Hoover	335,844
Smith	156,772

Washington usually has cast its votes for Republican presidential candidates. It voted two to one for Herbert Hoover, five to one for Calvin Coolidge and more than two to one for Warren G. Harding.

The state's Republican record has not been unbroken, however. It gave its vote to Theodore Roosevelt, Progressive, in 1912, and to Woodrow Wilson in 1916. One of its present senators, C. C. Dill, is a Democrat.

Washington's only election since 1928 was that for congressmen in 1930. In these contests, the total Republican vote in all districts was 297,723, and the total Democratic vote 16,779.

Gov. Roland H. Hartley (R) was defeated for renomination in this year's primaries, after a campaign in which he was assailed by some leaders within his own party. The pre-primary campaign dealt mainly with local issues. The total vote in the Republican primary was approximately 215,000, and in the Democratic primary approximately 185,000.

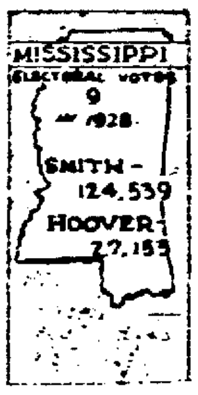

Washington's interest in power questions is keen, both Seattle and Tacoma having city-owned systems. Economic programs of the opposing parties have been of major interest in the current campaign.

Washington has eight electoral votes this year. It had seven in 1928.

Mississippi's Vote for President in 1928:

Smith	124,539
Hoover	27,153

Mississippi, which has nine electoral votes this year instead of its former 10, has voted for every Democratic candidate for the presidency since reconstruction days.

Herbert Hoover's vote in 1928, although amounting to less than one-fifth of the total, was the largest cast for a Republican candidate in 44 years. Alfred E. Smith and his views on prohibition formed the principal issue.

The Republican party offered no ticket in the state elections of 1931. Hence the vote in that year offered no direct indication of change in the status of the two parties. In the Democratic run-off primary of that year the total of votes cast for the two candidates was 315,608, more than double the total for both parties in 1928.

Redistricting of the state this year has caused a factional split among the Democrats, with two sets of candidates seeking the state's seven congressional seats. Both factions, however, are supporting the national ticket and party leaders say the dispute will not affect the presidential election.

The Republican party seldom offers a ticket in Mississippi's state elections, although it is customary to nominate congressional candidates to run along with the presidential electors.

Approve Compromise Made With City Banks

been laid out which affected but two properties. One of the property owners had offered to sell the city a right of way needed for $100, but the other wanted at least $4,500 because he was holding insurance on his property for that amount, but the mayor said a fair value for the property was $2,500.

As the work relief committee had no authority to acquire rights of way at its last meeting it had voted to ask the Board of Public Works to acquire the rights, and that board would undoubtedly refer the matter to the council asking it to take the necessary steps to acquire the land needed.

Deed to Murphy Street

The aldermen unanimously accepted the deed to Murphy street which had been approved by the corporation counsel and the Board of Public Works.

There were no other matters to be taken up at the special meeting and the council then adjourned.

BELONGED TO Y. M. C. A. DURING 1888-1889

Oct. 10, 1932.

Editor of Kingston Freeman.

Dear Sir:

I have read your article in tonight's issue of the Daily Freeman, in which you state that the Kingston Y. M. C. A. was started May 27, 1892.

During the year 1888-1889 I was a member of a Y. M. C. A. and attended every Friday night while attending Kingston Academy. They had rooms on Wall street on the second and third floors of a building that later was occupied by Forsyth & Davis and now by Grant's store.

Very truly,
W. FRANK DAVIS.

RIDE 'EM, COWBOY
"Nature in the Raw"—as expressed in the famous rodeo cry; inspired by the picture in the July issue of the National Geographic Magazine taken at the Ski Hi Stampede, Monte Vista, Colorado. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

LABRADOR ARTICLES WELL PATRONIZED.

The sale of articles made by the fisher folk of Labrador, which was conducted by Sir Wilfred and Lady Grenfell at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Monday afternoon and evening, was well patronized and was full of interest. The articles made by the people of Labrador that called forth the greatest interest were the very beautiful hooked rugs, many of them portraying Labrador scenes of one sort or another. The workmanship was remarkably near to the perfection of machine work, and the coloring and designs very artistic. A table full of hand-woven linens was also very attractive, and others of handmade toys, carved ivories, etc., all showing originality and cleverness, were surrounded with purchasers. Two very special articles that go directly to the Dr. Grenfell fund, were the puzzles of Labrador pictures, made by the Raphael Tuck Sons & Co., and calendars made by the same concern, who have been very generous in their share of the work. Framed pictures of Dr. Grenfell were also highly prized by the buyers. Today and tomorrow Dr. and Lady Grenfell are holding a similar sale at Lake Mohonk. One of the handsomest of the hooked rugs was made from worn silk stockings, the workers having a special slogan, "When your stockings run let them run to Labrador," and Lady Grenfell asked Kingston women to send such stockings to Grenfell Association, 156 Fifth avenue, New York city.

ministered solely by the pupils under the direction of the teachers. In this group the pupils study alphabetizing, the setting up and use of indexes, bookbinding, printing, the manufacture of ink, the designing of book covers, and many other details pertaining to library work.

In Sixth Grade

In grade 6 the forenoon is spent in some sort of activity work and the afternoon in drill work to cover the required work and to help individual students with any phase of work they need. Three rooms are devoted to Grade 6. In one a group project on chivalry was in progress. One group of boys was busy with the construction of a medieval castle, another group was making from packing boxes, later to be covered by burlap, the hill upon which the castle was to stand. At a nearby table a group of girls were making and dressing medieval ladies and men to go with the castle. The puppets for these were made with wire bodies, wooden heads and hands, and lead feet so that they would stand in any position.

AIR-CONDITIONED.

This "air conditioning" that we hear so much about lately may be a great thing, and again it may not. The idea has its appeal as winter approaches, and also as summer comes on. It would probably be pleasant to have something like a combination of furnace, refrigerator, air cleanser and humidifier automatically keep the air in a house or apartment uniformly pure and comfortable the year around, regardless of conditions outside. And if this prospect opens a new outlet for industrial production and promises to restore prosperity, more power to it!

But certain questions arise when you think it over a little. Federal investigators in Kentucky reported a couple of years ago that the people living in the cheapest and flimsiest homes were the healthiest. As soon as a family prospered and built a good house, everybody got sick. Our pioneer ancestors, exposed to all weather conditions and living in homes that the wind blew through, seldom caught colds. The most frequent calls for the doctor come from sheltered city flats.

Very likely it will be all right for the people in these modern air-conditioned houses, as long as they stay in the house, and if they can get enough exercise there. But what is going to happen to such tenderly nurtured folk when they happen to step outdoors into a fog or a blizzard or a heat wave? And what if some reckless old-fashioned person happens to open a window?

EDUCATION FLOURISHES.

College business is better than was expected. Many colleges report that instead of empty seats in classrooms, they have an enrollment as large as last year's, or larger. It is harder for students to pay than it has been for many years; but the colleges are helping as many as possible with scholarships, and students and their families are making greater sacrifices than usual. "I believe that the hunger for education is greater now than it ever was," says a college dean.

In cities where college work can be done at night, many students shift from the day schools to the night schools. They do this even when they have no employment by day, in order to be free to look for work and take anything that offers. There are so many high school graduates wanting to return for additional work that in many cities it is impossible to accept them all. Above all, the boys and girls now in high school and colleges are really working at their lessons.

Evidently something is going to come out of this depression besides chastening experience and depleted savings accounts. The new generation is going to be better fitted to face the battle of life, as far as education is concerned, than any previous generation was.

CANADIAN BASEBALL.

There may be no foundation for the recent report that a National League baseball franchise would be transferred to Montreal, and thus Canada would come into one of our big leagues. But the suggestion is interesting and not entirely illogical.

The baseball enthusiasm of our Canadian neighbors has missed the attention of many Americans. They are almost as crazy about the sport as we are. Canadian towns and villages have their ball teams very much as ours do. There are Canadian teams in minor leagues. For some reason or other, perhaps because Canadians are really more American than English, they have never taken to the British game of cricket so much as they have to baseball. Like us, they like active games. In fact, they go beyond us in this respect, for the old Indian game of lacrosse, once played by the aborigines on both sides of the border, which is a livelier sport than baseball, has been taken over by the white Canadians and neglected by us.

It is probably only a question of time until both our big baseball leagues have Canadian representation. It may be the destiny of this continent to become a unit in sport as in economics. That is, unless Mother Country Britishers make it a test of patriotism and demand imperial loyalty in sport.

There are still business institutions paying dividends, some paid out of charitable surplus and some currently earned. Corporation dividends paid out in this country during the present month, when many dividends are payable, may total $25[illegible]. That isn't much, however. It is less than the United States government is spending every month in the year. Dividends are low because business is poor. And in turn, business is poor because dividends are low; for a large part of good business comes from the spending of dividends. Thus business is like a regenerative furnace, while the fuel lasts. Too bad the cost of government takes so much of its fuel!

BLOOD PRESSURE A SYMPTOM

You may undergo an examination for life insurance and are told that as your blood pressure is a trifle too high the examination will have to be postponed till some future day.

In the meantime you begin to worry about the matter, perhaps lose some sleep and are in poor shape physically when the date the doctor set for the examination arrives.

If the examining physician has found your heart and kidneys to be sound, as is likely the case or he would not have you return, the chances are good that the high blood pressure is due to some temporary condition which may or may not have passed away by the day of the second examination.

If your blood pressure is not near the normal point, the physician will likely suggest that you see your own physician and perhaps also your dentist and report again in a few weeks or a few months. Your application for insurance will not be refused, but will be held over to give an opportunity to locate the possible cause of your high blood pressure.

In other words, unless the high blood pressure is due to the blood vessels being hard, it is only a symptom of some condition in your body that needs to be corrected. The pressure of the blood rises, your heart beats faster, and your lungs breathe more rapidly when any ailment is attacking the body.

The first rule in medicine in trying to find a cause for any condition is to "look for the commonest cause or causes."

Thus bad teeth, bad tonsils, chronic gall bladder trouble, chronic appendicitis or sluggishness of the large bowel, are immediately suspected and a thorough examination made.

Now although the high blood pressure helps the body while these conditions exist, nevertheless, this continued high blood pressure, just like a continued rapid heart beat, is bound to be "wearing" on the walls of the blood vessels, and lead to trouble.

In addition to having any cause removed, the patient should get plenty of rest, physical and mental, limit tea, coffee and tobacco, alcohol, and meat, and should rest after each meal.

ULSTER COUNTY APPLES AND PEARS GOING TO ENGLAND

Milton, Oct. 11.—The smaller and poorer grades of Greening apples have been kept off the city market to a considerable extent this fall by the reason of the fact the Hudson River Fruit Exchange is making regular exports of this fruit to England. Scarcely a week has gone by that shipments have not been made to Liverpool and other English ports. The Greenings are shipped on consignments. The Greenings have been bringing from $2.10 to $2.30 for the latest shipments. They range from 2¼ to 2½ inches in size. The last shipment was made last week on the steamer Georgic. Most of these apples have been supplied by Milton growers, including Walter, J. H. and Westervelt Clarke.

A third shipment of Keiffer pears was made to England Thursday by the Fruit Exchange, when 280 barrels were shipped from Milton in trucks for the Georgic of the White line and shipments will be made the latter part of this week on steamer Scythia of the Cunard Steamship Company. The pears that are being exported are of small size that meet with little demand here. They are bringing $1.80 to $2.40 and range in size from 1¾ to 2 inches. The export trade has been providing a good outlet for the smaller pears which would be difficult to sell in this country at any price.

Nothing Venture

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS As a restless search for Ann goes on almost over his head, Jervis Weare comes to himself in a forgotten cave used years before by smugglers. He realizes with terror that soon the sea will rise above where he lies; that great rocks are between him and safety. Now he realizes painfully that Lieutenant Carew and Robert Leonard brought him here—and that his wife Ann had warned him against them.

Chapter 44

A VISITOR APPEARS

JERVIS did not know how long he had been listening to the tide. There had been a moment of horrid panic when he knew that the tide was coming in.

It had been high tide last night—Tuesday night—at nine o'clock. It would be high tide, and spring tide, at ten minutes past eight on Wednesday morning. That made low tide just after two. It must have been somewhere about three o'clock when he was knocked out. Say that was an hour ago. . . . It was very difficult to gauge time, and he had no watch. He regretted his watch, with its luminous dial.

Well, if it was four o'clock or thereabouts, the tide had turned two hours before, and had another three hours to go. The question was—how far up was it going to come? He was on the landward side of the bars in the inner cave. Where did Foxy store his kegs? He didn't just leave them hanging about in the tide-water.

A little careful exploration showed him that he was on a raised ledge about six feet by eight. On one side it was bounded by a slippery tilted boulder of unknown height, and on the other three sides by an equally unknown drop. He couldn't climb the boulder; it was water-worn and as slippery as glass. Water-worn—and that tide was coming in. He could hear it moving stealthily.

There must be some ledge to which he could climb. . . . The thought of the passage came into his mind. Lechard must have brought him here by the passage. Then there must be a way down into the cave—and not too hard a way, because Leonard couldn't have carried him down much of a slope. He wondered if there were steps cut in the wall.

He must wait until there was enough water to float him, and then swim round the cave feeling for a foot-hold. His head was better now, but he felt terribly thirsty. The lapping of the water suggested a long cool drink. His thirst became intense. Thirst, and the lapping of the tide. . . .

"I should hate that death handaged my eyes, and forebore and crept past."

Where did that come from? He didn't know. He must have read it. And there was something farther on about the "black minute." Black minute—black eternity—the lapping, rising water. If he could only see. . . .

With the word in his mind, he saw.

A harsh dragging, grating sound made a confusion among the echoes of the cave, and cutting through the black darkness and the confusion, came a white and brilliant shaft of light.

Jervis looked up at it, tingling with a sense of shock. Light—a level ray of it overhead.

It sprang out of the darkness into which he was staring, and he saw black scarred rock all wet and shining, with fissures that ran moisture.

Someone had come down the passage from Old Foxy's house and was standing in the mouth of it with a powerful electric torch in his hand. Then suddenly the beam swung down and hit him in the face. He threw up his arm involuntarily, as if to ward a blow; and from the black mouth of the passage Robert Leonard laughed.

"So you've come to, have you?"

"Take that damned light off me!" said Jervis furiously.

He felt it go, and then flick back and catch him blinking.

Robert Leonard laughed again.

"Not looking quite your best—are you? Like a wash and brush up? Oh, I see you've had the wash. What about a drink? You've got a bit of a head, haven't you?" As he spoke he swung the light to and fro.

Jervis steadied himself against the intermittent dazzle, and got what he could from it. Only a foot drop from where he was to pool level. There were two pools, one running right back to the wall of the cave, and another between him and the iron bars.

The tide was right up to the bars now, and the step was hidden. The passage from Foxy's house had been behind him. The beam cut down from it at an angle and swung to and fro. There must be a fairly footworthy path between the edge of the pool and the tilted boulder, because Leonard must have brought him that way.

The cave was about twenty feet across, and his rock a little on one side of the middle—say eight feet from the wall where the passage came out.

The light swung in. He saw that there was just such a narrow path as he had guessed at. The ray poured down almost vertically for a moment, and then cut right across the cave and made a steady circle on the dripping wall. Jervis guessed that the torch had been set down.

"I've come to talk business," said Robert Leonard.

Jervis spoke to him for the first time. He said,

"You swab!"

"And I don't want any of your back-chat," said Leonard. His voice was the voice of a man who stands in a lounging attitude with his hands in his pockets. "I've got you cold—and if you haven't got enough sense to see it, and to keep a civil tongue in your head, you can stay here and drown—it would suit me better.

"D'you get that? I'd sooner you were drowned—dead men tell no tales, and all the rest of it. It would suit me a whole heap better to let you drown. You get that by heart and keep it in mind!"

Jervis could just see him now that the light was still. He had set it down, not at at his feet, but on some sort of ledge on a level with his hand. His hands showed, and his face, and a light patch that was collar and shirt. They looked like pale funguses in the dark. The rest was shadow.

"Well?" said the easy voice. "Going to be sensible and talk? You're up against it, you know."

Jervis got up and stood against the tilted boulder. He set an elbow on it and leaned his head on his hand. Moving made him giddy for a moment. He said,

"What do you want?"

The thing seemed still so inconceivable. His thoughts felt stiff; he couldn't really bend them to deal with it. There was a blind rage waiting to sweep him off his feet, but he'd got to keep that back. A blind rage—a blind tide—rising tide—spring tide—storm tide—waiting to carry him away, to sweep him against the rocks, to dash him senseless, to drown the cave—and him.

He leaned heavily upon his hand. He heard Leonard speaking, but the words went by him. It was like a wrong tuning on the radio—a blare of sound without words or sense. Then, all at once, his name sharp and clear, and the confusion gone.

"Jervis!" and, "What about it?"

He looked up stupidly, blinking at the ray.

"I didn't hear what you said."

Robert Leonard swore with an obvious anger which Jervis found heartening. Come to think of it, it was annoying to breathe fire and slaughter, and find that the victim hadn't been attending. Jervis laughed inwardly.

"Perhaps you wouldn't mind saying it again," he said politely.

Once more Robert Leonard swore. He had quite an extensive vocabulary and appeared to be in good form.

"Look here, I've come here to talk business, not to waste my time!"

"It's valuable of course," said Jervis.

Leonard's voice took on a nasty rasp.

"Yours is, if mine isn't. Perhaps you've noticed that the tide's coming in. Well, either we're going to talk business, or I go away and leave you. See?"

He snatched up the torch and turned its circle of light straight downward. Jervis had thought there must be steps cut in the rock.

There were no steps.

Bloom of Lilacs

Common lilacs have been known to grow ten or twelve years without blooming. Science can give no reason for this condition. Sometimes spading around the roots checks the growth of the bush and helps it to bloom.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—

by John Hix

Although he could wear a different uniform or suit every day for more than a year and a half without wearing the same one twice, King George of England feels much the same about new clothes as do many of his less important fellowmen. He likes old clothes. Unless affairs of state require his appearing in one of his impressive outfits, he prefers more comfortable apparel. Once he was seen in shoes that had been mended.

King George's wardrobe consists largely of military and naval uniforms. He has two complete uniforms, one dress and one undress, for each regiment. He is the Colonel-in-Chief. For different locations he must wear different dress. At Windsor he wears the "Windsor" uniform—in Scotland he dresses in kilts.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, Oct. 10—Mr. and Mrs. William Wardell of Poughkeepsie were recent guests at the home of Mrs. Wardell's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Giles.

Mrs. O. C. Parks, a trained nurse, is spending a few days as the guest of Miss Bertha Green at the latter's home in the village.

George Rieker, the genial star route mail man, has a new dog to replace the police pup which he lost last winter. The dog was a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chase, who have a summer home on Winchell mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wallerstein of Brooklyn were the guests of Raymond Osterhoudt and family over the week-end. Mrs. Wallerstein is a sister of Mrs. Osterhoudt.

The McNally & Bouton show people, who are staging vaudeville entertainments in the village hall this week, arrived here Sunday after closing a successful run over at Woodstock, and are camping in their enclosed trucks opposite the corner store. There are twelve persons connected with the show, which is conducted by Mr. Bouton of Macon, Ga., and Mr. McNally, of Vermont.

Although the wind blew a gale during and after the heavy rainfall of last Wednesday and Thursday, comparatively little damage was done to the apple crop here. Much of the fruit had been picked before the storm, and that which remained on the trees appears to have withstood the racket pretty well.

On October 10, 1900, the marriage took place of William B. Whittaker to Phoebe Jane Krom, both of whom were residents of the town of Marbletown. The Rev. O. P. Dales, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church, was the officiating clergyman at this wedding.

Mrs. Elva Bogart of Kingston has offered the apples on her heights farm for the picking.

One resident of the west end reports that water now fills his well to the top, but it is too rolly to use. From one extreme to another, as it were.

Santi Nadal of New York city spent the week-end with Mrs. Nadal at their home on Van Steenburgh road.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chase of Poughkeepsie were callers in the village last Sunday morning.

Alex Peacock of Woodstock is painting the residence of Mrs. Jane Stubley, who is his sister. "Sandy", a former resident of Shokan, is the father of John Peacock, a live-wire of the Woodstock American Legion Post.

John Arnold and family of Guilderland motored here Sunday morning and spent the day with Mrs. Arnold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Kimendorf. Mr. Arnold has finished harvesting a large crop of potatoes for which he received top-of-the-market prices.

John Cook, a well known resident of the Brown Station sector, was a caller in the village on Sunday.

Herbert Cruthers and family of Ridgefield Park, N. J., spent the week-end at their summer place on Church Hill.

E. Cary Bostock of Bryn Athyn, Pa., was a recent visitor at his farm on the mountain road.

Joseph Neale of Poughkeepsie, accompanied by a party of friends, was at the Neale Cottage on the north boulevard during the week-end.

Robert K. Story and son, R. K. Story, Jr., were callers in the village Sunday morning. The Storys have a country home near Tice-Ten-Eyck mountain.

A local marriage of October 11, 1905, was that which united Fred Beatty of Stone Ridge and Carrie Ryder of the Shokan-Brodhead road. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ambrose Quick, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church.

There will be no school sessions here Tuesday on account of a teachers' meeting. This closing, together with that of Columbus Day, gives the pupils both a vacation and an opportunity to gather the family supply of hickory and butternuts.

Mrs. Mary Rogers, who has been spending the summer months at her place on the mountain, is now visiting friends in the west.

The recent rains played havoc with the Ridge road in several places. The hill at Hogsback is hardly fit for automobile travel, what with the gulleys which have been washed out at that point.

James A. Hartvig of New York city spent a few days at his country home on the north boulevard recently. The Hartvig property was formerly known as the Will Longyear place.

J. Waldo Smith of New York City was a week-end visitor at his old stone mansion overlooking the west basin of the reservoir.

Tips on CONTRACT

Making A Reentry

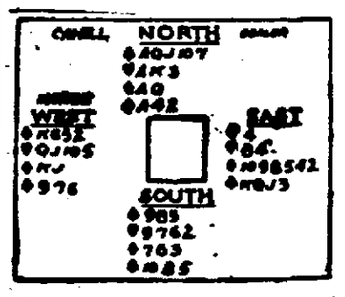

By Tom O'Neil

Hands of great strength warranting original game-demand bids at times have opposite them yarboroughs which require card-reading and care for the contracts to be fulfilled.

Difficulty is likely to arise in taking a trick in the poor hand of the partnership so that it can lead up to the strong hand. Especially is this so when the responding hand, in response to the forcing bid, mentions no trump as a denial of strength and becomes the declarer.

Dr. John J. Cahill of Brooklyn, N. Y., held a power house in a game at the Marine and Field club, and after his partner's best response of two no trump he carried a vulnerable contract to three no-trump, which was doubled by B. J. Morse. While not holding great strength himself, Morse thought that the indications of poor cards in the responding hand warranted a double of a vulnerable no-trump contract. He has found such a policy occasionally a great point-producer.

Success for the declarer came by giving Morse a trick and thereby making a valuable entry in the declarer's hand in order that a finesse could be taken against Morse. Here was the hand.

Cahill opened the bidding with two spades. An original bid of three no trump would be likely to prevent a slam contract in case south had some strength. East passed, and south bid two no trump, showing extreme weakness. West passed, and Cahill bid three no trump, which west doubled.

West opened the queen of hearts. North won the trick and led the ten of spades, which west took with the king. This play enabled the declarer later to lead the spade seven from the north hand and take the trick in the south with the eight. Then the finesse of the diamond queen, the success of which seemed now 4, since the double by west indicated probable possession of the diamond king, gave game to the declarer.

Had south been unable to put himself in his hand for finesse only two no trump would have been made, the eight certain tricks in the north hand. Eventually north would have had to lead away from the ace-queen of diamonds, the adversaries making one spade, one heart, one diamond and two clubs.

Closing Service of Week of Prayer

The closing service of the Five Rondout Protestant Churches was held Friday night last in Trinity M. E. Church, with the sermon by the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Smith of the Wurts Street Baptist Church. The sermon synopsis follows.

Topic: "Consecration."

Text: First Corinthians, Fourth chapter and Second verse. "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful."

"Consecration, of which we speak, is a separation from the lower to the higher things in life. It is devotion to an individual or to a given task in life. This implies faithfulness and faithfulness fidelity—a word around which I shall build my sermon this evening.

"I am thinking of some of the faithful now sainted. You will please think with me, of faithful Ruth, who, uniting herself with God's people, became an ancestress of our Lord; also of Esther who by her fidelity became the saviour of her people. Then we think of the great Martin Luther, Savonarola, Huss and Jerome, Wycliff and Knox, John Wesley, Roger Williams, Spurgon and Moody; all of whom were among the great army of the faithful.

"Let me speak first, of faithfulness to Christ's authority. This means loyalty to our captain. It is required in stewards that a man be found faithful. The whole world joins in execrating a deserter. Few can be found who have any respect for a Benedict Arnold or Aaron Burr. Fidelity is required of the Christian. When he surrendered to Christ's authority he said 'I'll go with you Lord, where you want me to go; I'll be what you want me to be; I'll do what you want me to do.'

"Sixty per cent of the members of our churches have forgotten their vows, in consequence of which God has suffered depression to come upon us and it will remain until the church awakes and consecrates herself to the task for which the church was instituted. The cry is, Awake! Awake!

"Secondly: Fidelity implies exact performance of duty. A steward must be faithful. He must be reliable. The prime quality of a clerk or any employe is reliability. Calls come from everywhere for men and women who have proved themselves reliable. In 1851 during a terrible storm two men in Minot lighthouse were faithful through the hours keeping the bell peeling and the lights flashing out their warnings. They expected the tower to go down and it did and they were lost; but they were faithful unto death. Such is the fidelity our Lord requires of us.

"Thirdly: Fidelity requires adhesion to the party of Christ. There are but two parties—Christian and non-Christian. We have our separate churches but let us consider ourselves as 'one body' in Christ. Ye cannot serve God and the world. Let us be loyal to God's people, churches and our divine Lord.

"Fourthly: Fidelity requires continuance in well-doing. 'Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life'. In the history of the destruction of Pompeii there is nothing of greater interest than the conduct of the guard at the gate which looked out upon the burning mountain. His orders were to stand on guard until relieved by another or dismissed by a superior. The ashes fell about him and covered his feet and legs, came on up to his shoulders but he stood. On came the ashes up over his face shutting off his breath. Still the ashes fell until he was buried far beneath them. He stood at his post. Seventeen centuries passed and still he stood at his post. When they uncovered him he was still standing, his helmet on his bony head and his bony fingers still clinging to his spear. A wonderful lesson for us in Fidelity. Let everyone of us resolve that we will henceforth stand at our post every Sunday and at the mid-week service. Religion is an appeal to heroism. Let us not be wanting in this quality. Then let everyone of us consecrate ourselves to our Lord and His church and its services, and Christ's gift to us will be a crown of life."

MARLBOROUGH LIONS CLUB TO RID TOWN OF RATS

Milton, Oct. 10.—Two projects which will be of real benefit to the town were taken into consideration by the Marlborough Lion's Club at its meeting last Tuesday evening. Each project, after being discussed quite thoroughly, was referred to the proper committee which will make reports of definite steps to be taken at the next meeting. One of the projects considered was that of ridding the town of rats. The village of Marlborough especially is tormented with rats. The dangerous corner in the road at Lattingtown was discussed and referred to the Major Activities Committee which will plan steps to be taken in order to eliminate this dangerous curve. Final reports of Charter Night held recently were made at this meeting. Tuesday's session was a dinner meeting at Shady Brook Lodge. About 28 members attended.

"Sponging House"

In England, in olden days, a sponging house was a sort of tavern kept by a bailiff, where debtors could be lodged temporarily while arrangements for paying their debts were being made.

Scale Insects Attack Maple Trees Here

W. J. Clark, assistant manager of the Farm Bureau, reports that a small soft bodied scale-like insect, known as the Cottony Scale of maple (Pulvinaria innumerabilis) is attacking the maple trees of Kingston. The pest can be recognized by the masses of cottony material which are secreted by the female on the undersides of the leaves, the twigs and on the trunks of the trees. When numerous, the ground or pavement beneath the trees becomes covered with a black sticky substance, which is the honey-dew or secretion upon which a peculiar fungus grows.

During the summer and early autumn the Farm Bureau has received numerous phone calls and a number of visits were made in the city, in answer to calls, to find out what new insect was infesting our shade trees, particularly the maple. In all cases, the same scale insect was found. The pest is very common in Kingston and if left to breed unmolested will cause the death of many maple trees within a few years.

The cottony scale sucks the juices from the trees, thereby causing early defoliation. This continued drain upon the food materials or sap, produces a general weakening of the trees. Such trees are more liable to borer infestations. Many mid-western cities have lost their maple trees due directly to the cottony scale.

What can be done to save our trees, especially our maples, is a material question for everyone to ask? According to Mr. Clark, the salvation is to spray the trees before they get leaves in the spring with a three or four per cent oil spray. Every infested tree and all the maple trees in the infested areas should be sprayed. After the leaves are out there is no effective way to control this pest.

School Principals Laud Kiwanis Charity

October 7, 1932.

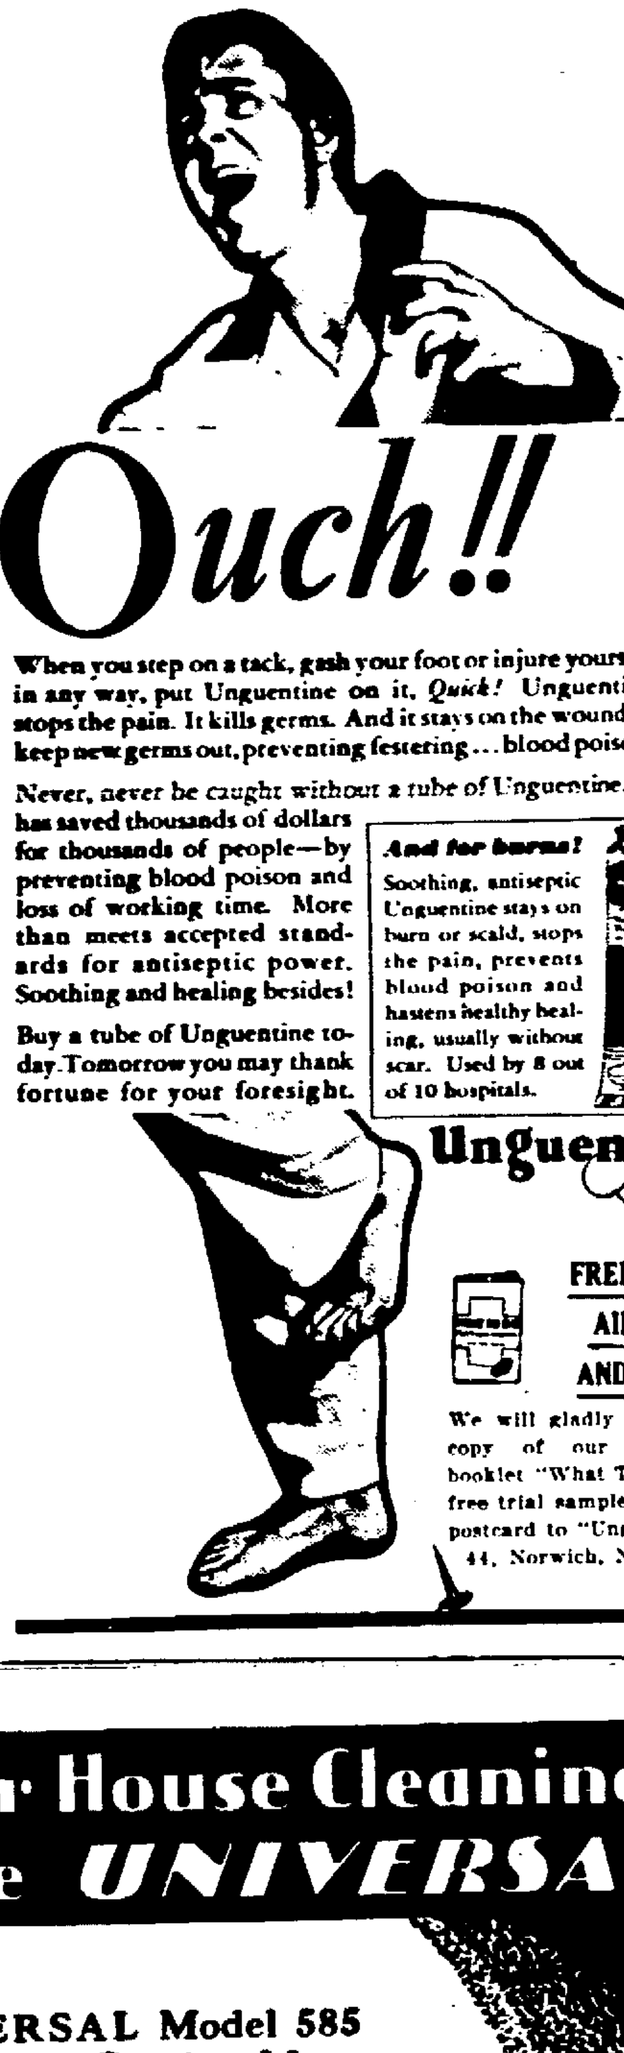

The Kiwanis Club,
Kingston, N. Y.
Gentlemen.—

"And the greatest of these is charity". These words, often quoted, express fully our belief that in this world of modern materialism we should never forget the individuals and groups who, by their actions, disprove so utterly the assertion that modern life has forgotten spiritual values. Your existence as an organization and your unselfish efforts for those children too young to help themselves place you worthily among these noble souls.

We who sign this letter desire to give our testimony as to the real help you are giving to the needy children in our schools, through the generous contribution of milk, through your support of the dental clinic, and through your sympathetic cooperation in every way toward making the lives of little children less unhappy in these days of want and suffering. We ask that you make this brief communication public, that it may be of some help in arousing the interest and support of all the people of Kingston in the play to be presented on October eleventh and twelfth under your auspices.

We know that financial backing of your organization in this matter by all good people is more necessary at this time than in any previous year; and, closing this with another quotation—"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of My little ones ye have done it unto Me"—we thank you for your service to real charity in the past, and wish you long-continued and deserved success through all your future years.

Sincerely yours,

Fashion Takes Up the Necking Question

Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild

In the upper sketch is one of the tab collars in which women are expressing much interest, with matching cuffs, the set developed in white pique.

The lacy jabot effect buttoned with crystal buttons is made of creamy white satin finished with hand embroidery at the pleated edges.

Next is a triply-ruffled white crepe de chine collar fitting tight up to the neck closing in back.

Below it one of the newer jabots is made of fine wale pique trimmed with pleating and hand fagoting, the inverted pleats balancing the wide and underlaid flare to the cuffs.

The Glamor of Jewels

New York—If you cannot have jewels, you can at least have jewel colorings. That is a compensation, for in most jewels color is their loveliest quality. This gown is a perfectly stunning combination of sapphire and ruby shades. If the lovely drapery and the beautiful sapphire hue of the gown won't get you, those ducky little ruby ruches will. You do not need jewels to go with it although needless to remark gold or either of the jewels mentioned would be lovely.

Have I mentioned the new way of wearing the long bead chains? They are sometimes slung around the neck and over one shoulder, and they are also worn reversed, the long part being at the back. There is a tendency to do without necklaces unless they are long, and to wear pendant earrings for evening. The earrings best liked for day wear are of the so-called button type and are very large. If pendent earrings are preferred they should be short.

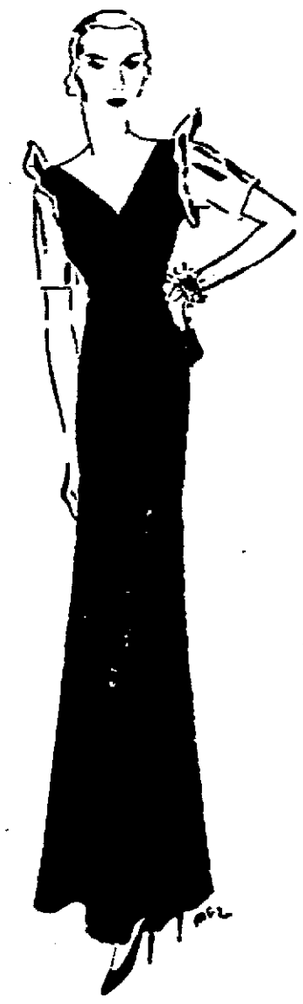

Bracelets are worn either day or night, for formal and for sports wear, only fastidious women do not wear the same bracelets for all purposes. Rhinestones are the evening preference of those who cannot produce the necessary sparkle by wearing genuine stones. There is no ban on rhinestone jewelry providing it is of the costume jewelry type.

There is enough metal on most smart dresses to be impressive. Buttons, buckles, slides, clasps and what have you. Handbags are sometimes metal trimmed but many of the newest bags are made on covered frames—if any.

The subject of handbags brings up the matter of fabric. Felt is very chic if one's hat is felt or one's belt or shoes or collar. Suede and antelope continue, velvet is of course the vogue, but must be worn with velvet hat or with a formal costume, and various novelty woolens are extremely smart. There is also leather. As usual handbags are mostly either black or brown.

There is a tendency to reinstate the bag with a handle, but one is playing safe by clinging to one's old love the under arm bag.

A JEWEL OF A GOWN

Dark sapphire blue dull velvet makes this gown from Augustabernard with its high-crossed bodice, and contrast is given by sleeves of the same velvet in bright ruby, which mount in crests over the shoulders.

The Placket to Insure Curves

The rows of tiny buttons that you are seeing these days on dresses carry a definite responsibility in making frocks so trim and satisfactorily form-fitting. They actually function in the good old-fashioned way, and that their service is important is seen in the latitude regarding the position of these buttoned openings wherever the placket best suits the need.

As commented on often, the snug waistline of the reigning silhouette demands an opening for the safe and comfortable drawing-on of the dress, and it is evidently in many designers' minds to make a feature of this placket rather than to utilize it as a semi-concealed closing.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Red jumper-blouses are worn with black skirts, and lively orange ones with brown skirts, for example, the jumpers developed in velveteen, corduroy or jersey, and also in rough crepe.

"Edwardian fashions" are announced—and refer to the styles in vogue when Edward VII reigned.

Millinery not of the dress fabric corresponds in color with the accessories, which seem so often to be either black or brown.

Millinery silhouettes are divided into two main styles, the narrow brim turned up in back and worn forward over the forehead, and the turban.

In daytime fashions the tunic that may be described as in seven-eighth length is a big favorite, approval for crepe as well as lightweight woolen dresses, with the tunic that is shorter seen less frequently, but nevertheless important.

Gray is forging ahead.

One of the most interesting developments of the autumn season is the interest shown in two-piece dresses, with the short jumper and the tunic costume.

"DETACHABLE" NOTE OF FALL COSTUMES

Makes Possible a Variety of Changes in Outfit.

Detachable collars and cuffs, detachable capes, detachable belts and cravats and even tunics—that's the feature of the fall styles.

Coats have detachable fur collars.

Frocks have tailored collars and cuffs of pique or starched linen that button and come off with one gesture, to be replaced by frilly affairs that dress a simple frock up for afternoon.

Starting with one simple, well-tailored black silk crepe dress, you can arrange a number of entirely different effects, just by changing collars and cuffs.

For street year, you can button on one of the new little stand-up collars and cuff-button cuffs of starched white linen.

Or, if you're feeling dashing, you may wear a wide white collar and elbow cuffs of white pique.

If you want to look a little frilly for a bridge party, you may substitute one of the choir-boy Bertha-collars, made of rows and rows of pleated chiffon.

A new tunic frock of black rough crepe consists of a simple frock with puffed sleeves, and a crisp little jabot of knife-pleated chiffon, with matching cuffs.

Loose Woven Cottons Popular for Autumn

Cottons, especially those of a heavy, crepey texture, are slated among autumn successes in Paris fashion prophecies. In the new spongey weaves, they are scheduled to be worn not only for country dress, suits and jackets, but for a certain type of informal town costume as well.

Many of these new cotton weaves give every appearance of wool fabrics. They are woven in loose, thick textures and may be crushed and sat upon without showing much evidence of wrinkling. Some have threads of wool or silk in their weaves, and though listed as washable fabrics, they keep their sturdy appearances much better if dry-cleaned.

Drop Bellhop Jackets for Lumberjack Coats

The little gray flannel suit that has been so popular, is taking on new distinction. French designers are adding to the original skirt-and-jacket combination, making new types of blouses, scarfs, belts and other accessories that entirely change the appearance of the original outfit.

So effectively have the dressmakers provided the suit with quick-change graces, that it has almost become the standard equipment of every well-dressed woman.

HICKORY HILL DEVELOPS 306-EGG CHAMPION HEN

West Shokan, Oct. 10—Charles H. Weidner, widely known proprietor of Hickory Hill Farm, reports that on October 5 Walter Schait, R. O. P. inspector, tested out the 306th egg from his white leghorn pullet, No. D2162. The weight of the egg was 2.1 ounces, and that of the hen four pounds, two ounces. This is the second 300-egger developed out of Mr. Weidner's 1931 and '32 R. O. P. pullet flock. He predicts that more will follow as a good proportion of these pullets yet have the balance of October and part of November remaining in which to complete their first year records.

This record of 306 eggs exceeds by four eggs the previously established high record for the Weidner strain. The production of a 306-egg hen at Hickory Hill is a record of which Ulster county may well be proud, as this bird may truthfully be said to be an Ulster county product, as Mr. Weidner's breeding methods are such that he does not have to buy in high producing parent stock in order to obtain such results. Mr. Weidner has bred his strain of birds for the past 12 years, and during that time he has built up a strain of single comb white leghorns famous through the state for their vigor, hardiness, good appearance, and consistent high productiveness.

Inexpensive Meals To Be Demonstrated

The stretching of food dollars to make them cover items of food necessary to have all members of the family well nourished is a pressing problem these days. To meet this situation the Ulster County Home Bureau is offering to the homemakers of the city and county a three-lesson course in "Low Cost Menus" or "How to Get the Most for Your Food Dollar". Miss Lillian Shaben, food specialist from the State College of Home Economics, is in charge of the work and the first lesson will be given at the Home Service Department of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, 611 Broadway, Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

The course in low cost meals is given this fall as a part of the economy program by the Home Bureau this year. Miss Shaben in her lecture demonstration Tuesday afternoon will suggest low cost menus for three days. They include foods that are inexpensive yet wholesome, for example, inexpensive meats, cheese, eggs, milk, whole grain cereals, fruits and vegetables. One dinner she will suggest is an oven-baked meal costing a minimum of both time and fuel, another is a vegetable plate using home grown products entirely and a third utilizes beef liver which is expensive and a vegetable casserole which permits the use of small amounts of "left overs".

Miss Shaben will demonstrate the making of several low cost dishes and recipes will be handed out including health muffins, pumpkin custard, stuffed carrots, apple surprise, peach fluff, egg and bacon rosettes, toasty macaroons.

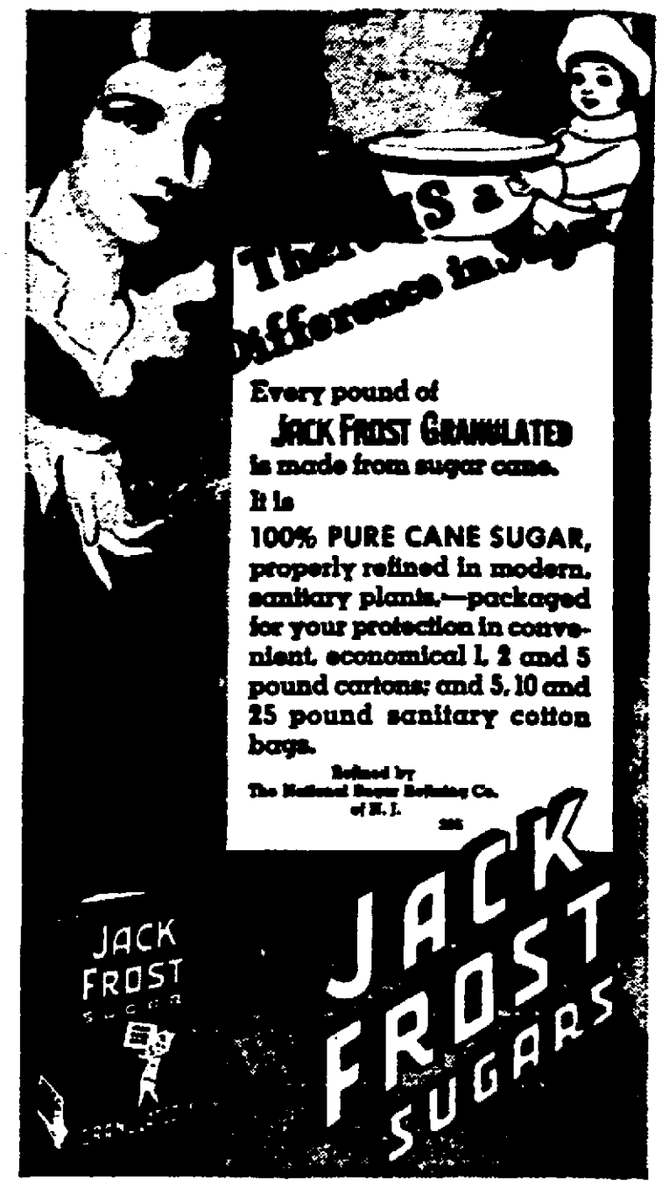

The meeting Tuesday afternoon is open to all homemakers and a large group is expected. A cordial invitation is extended to ladies of the city and county.

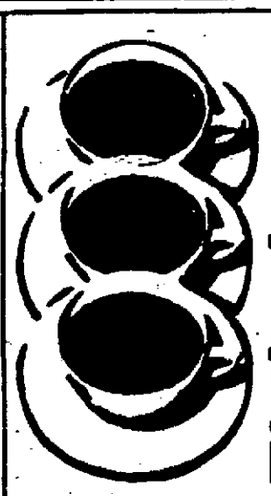

Dance at Catskill.

The Catskill Volunteer Fire Company will hold another of their popular modern and old fashioned dances in their new fire house on Wednesday evening, October 12. Music for dancing will be furnished by "Floyd and Mike." Dancing will be held nine to 1. Proceeds will apply on purchase price of a motorized chemical outfit for the company. A very cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

By Walter Thompkins

Since stocks have gone up, our bold leaders of finance and industry have stuck their heads out of the cyclone cellar, but are ready to pull in their necks at the first cloud or new puff of wind. It seems natural to some of us who can remember the storm of 1929, to hear once more in homes and restaurants the talk of investments instead of waits concerning the depression.

People actually are giving cash other tips again. And they are beginning to take a little gamble on the market again. They figure that this time they will sail at the top. Of course, they won't. Anyhow, it is a lucky break for brokers' clerks. Some of them are going to work again.

Lunching at The Players recently, William P. Bonsall pointed out that the depression really had caused the start of a new cycle. First, there were a lot of small businesses. Then came corporations and consolidations, which eliminated the little fellow and resulted in big business. When the depression arrived, big business had to close up or cut down and there was a terrific increase in the country's unemployed. The less resourceful of these sat around and waited for their old employers to start hiring again, but there were others who decided to take a shot at something new. For example, Mr. Bonsall told of one youngster who had worked for a big chain store. He went to a number of customers in a certain neighborhood and told them that if they would agree to buy their groceries steadily of him he could save them money, because he had no overhead and would not have to allow for rents. He worked up a profitable business.

Now that youngster would not go back to his former job if he could. He is his own boss and doing well. The chances are that some day he will open a little store, and it will grow larger, and he will either form a chain or sell out to one. Then the new cycle will be complete. But that time probably is a couple of decades away, or more. Another youngster, who always has been a clever carpenter, mechanic and electrician, has built and sold a number of ice boxes. Others have made jobs for themselves. By and large, there will not be much trouble about youth. Youth can adapt itself to any conditions and it is fitted to survive. The ones who feel the hard going are the middle-aged, who do not find it so easy to suit themselves to a changed world, fitted only to a former breed.

One of the most prominent New Yorkers is Frank J. Sprague, the seventy-five-year-old inventor who built the first real trolley line, worked out the multiple unit system, and did a lot about high speed elevators. He now has perfected some scheme by which two elevators can run in one shaft without colliding, and I think is doing something about big electric signs. For a man of any age, Mr. Sprague keeps busy.

John N. Wheeler claims to know a guy so absent-minded that he puts a nickel in the slot every time he goes through a turnstile coming out of the subway.

In the 1-cent restaurant on West Forty-third street, 5 cents will get you bean soup, creamed codfish on toast, bread pudding, and coffee with cream. Or, still for a nickel, you may have pea soup, vegetable stew, doughnuts, and a glass of milk. Beef meat cakes are 2 for 5; beef stew is a nickel even. Patronage is brisk.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

"Life is a gamble"—yes, but at least you can play your own cards.

Mrs. Perkins—I hear that your sister is married. Is she happy?

Mrs. Simpkins—Very. There's only one thing annoys her: she can't She can't bear her husband.

Mrs. Perkins—But one can't expect everything.

Why is it that if business has gone where everyone says it has, some of the frozen assets don't thaw out?

Friend—Who really is the boss in your home?

Husband—Well, of course Josephine assumes command of the children, servants, dog, cat and canary. But I can say pretty much what I please to the goldfish.

Our idea is that most of these people who are healthy enough to go through the physical culture exercises, really don't need them.

Teacher—What is an island?

Bright Boy—A place where the bottom of the sea sticks up through the water.

If you want to escape the worries and anxieties of future depressions you have only to obey one little economic law: Spend less than you make and save the difference.

Wife—On your way home from the office, will you stop by the department store?

Husband—If Is must, but I positively will not attend one of those scrimmage sales.

"How can I work?" a tramp said to woman. "Work's what killed my poor wife."

Failure is caused not so much by what we can't do, but rather by what we can do. . . . . And don't.

There are many steps on the ladder leading to success, but few of them are dance steps, muses a local man. Yes, you are right. He's no young man, any more.

Father-in-Law (surveying daughter's new home)—What I particularly liked about you, Edward, was that you made no appeal to me for help in furnishing your new home.

Son-in-Law—N-no. Well, you see, the first installment isn't due for nearly a month.

It is bad enough to have to regret some of your thoughts but they will not get you into nearly so much trouble as some of your deeds.

Weatherwords.

As a rule a man's a fool,
When it's hot, he wants it cool.
When it's cool, he wants it hot,
Always wanting what is not.
Never liking what he's got.
I maintain, as a rule,
Man's a fool.

Stray Shots—The present system of game conservation is more of a jobholders conservation......Every country has its national dish, from the way the girls fall for it, ours must be the old applesauce......A little vision goes a long way—too much vision has wrecked more men than too little......Sometimes a boy's love is so blind he can't even see his own faults......Faith and love are two things that can't be compulsed......Don't give anyone a piece of your mind: you need it all yourself ...... Marriage is the banana skin on the doorstep of romance......A parasite is a person who goes through a revolving door without pushing......Girls object if you string them along, but they love it if you cable them......Halitosis is better than no breath at all. ......A sure way to destroy an ideal is to realize it......Most any mystery, however unimportant, may easily arouse great interest.

Rifton, Oct. 11.—The neighbors and friends of J. Felber and family extend their deepest sympathy at this hour of their bereavement.

News from the World on Wheels

H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Company, admitted today that the "mystery car" which has been so widely mentioned in the press throughout the nation is a product of his company and that complete details will be announced within the next week. While Mr. Franklin, who has pioneered air-cooled automobiles for thirty years, refused to reveal the important details of the new car, he admitted that he regards it as the most important development in the history of his company. He did say that the engine would be air cooled and like the other current Franklin models, the engine would be supercharged and develop 100 horsepower. He said also the new car would not replace models already on the market but would be an addition to the line.

For the sixth consecutive year the Chevrolet Motor Company has won first place at the annual automobile shows sponsored by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, according to the drawings made here last week. This honor, one eagerly sought by the industry, carries with it the right to first choice of exhibition space at the two automobile shows to be sponsored by the N. A. C. C. at New York and Chicago early next year. Relative positions are awarded by the chamber on the basis of dollar volume of member companies in the twelve months ended June 30. In this period, Chevrolet led all member companies of the N. A. C. C., having built and sold more cars than any other manufacturer in the association.

September retail sales of Oldsmobile were within one and a fraction per cent of those of September, 1931, according to a statement issued today by factory officials, while figures for the entire industry are approximately 50 per cent below sales of last year.

Automobiles are now being delivered wrapped in paper packages. The Packard Motor Car Company has instituted such a plan with the Twin Six, its 12 cylinder car and biggest in the Packard line. Each Twin Six goes through protracted testing and inspection after it leaves the assembly line. Each is "broken in" with a 250-mile drive at the Packard proving ground where is located the fastest speedway in the world. After it has been certified by engineers as ready for any kind of driving on the road, each car is polished in every exposed part from bumper to bumper. With all this completed, a corps of inspectors descend on the car. It is inspected under a battery of powerful lights and then wheeled out into the sunlight for inspection. The finding of even the tiniest spot on the finish anywhere on the car is sufficient to send it back to the polishers. After all of the inspectors and polishers have given their approval the car still has a crucial test to meet. It must face the quality committee for final approval. This committee is made up of engineers and body building, upholstering, painting and color experts. When one of the new Packard twelves has passed all tests and has been given final approval no chances of anything happening to it are taken. It is inclosed in a great bag, probably the biggest paper bag that was ever used for wrapping up a package for delivery to a customer. The bag keeps the car spotless when it is being shipped or while it is waiting for its new owner to unwrap it and drive it home.

Kidnaped Banker Set Free By Captors

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP).—Somewhat unnerved but otherwise unharmed, Norman B. Collins, Chicago banker, was back at his home today after having been freed by kidnapers who released him, and escaped a trap police set for them. No ransom money was paid.

Collins, held captive 12 hours, was set free when the five men who had seized him and his wife yesterday morning near their home in Patrician, Wilmette, apparently became alarmed at the headlined activities of officials investigating the affair. Mrs. Collins had been released earlier.

SCHOOL WOMEN'S CLUB HELD MEETING SATURDAY

The School Women's Club of the Hudson Valley held its fall meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Saturday, October 8. Assembly and business session began at 10:30 a. m., the president, Miss Jane Mauterstock of Kingston, presiding. The following members were chosen to act as a nominating committee which presents its report at the next meeting at Cold Spring: Miss Fannie Gill, Newburgh, chairman; Miss Bertha Tait, Cold Spring; Mrs. Rose Witter, Kingston.

At the close of the business meeting, Miss Belle Chapman of Newburgh, chairman of the program committee, introduced Robert Williams, supervisor of music in public schools of Newburgh and choirmaster of St. John's Episcopal Church, Kingston, who spoke on the subject, "Some thoughts on Public School Music."

The main theme brought out by the speaker was that music is an almost indispensable factor in one's life if that life is to be useful and joyous and satisfied. That the public school teacher could do much to inspire pupils with the need of the esthetic things of life—music, art, etc.

At the close of this very helpful address, St. John's choir boys rendered two selections—"In Heavenly Love Abiding," by Watkins, with Master William Whitney singing the solo part delightfully, and "Comes at Times a Stillness as of Even," by Woodward. Both of these numbers were rendered with an artistic musical appreciation. Much applause greeted each number and Mr. Williams and "his boys" were given a rising vote of thanks.

At one o'clock, a delicious luncheon faultlessly served at tables attractively decorated with bitter sweet and fall flowers. The menu as follows:

Fruit cocktail, saltines, celery hearts, olives, squab on toast, fresh lima beans, French fried potatoes, rolls, ice cream, assorted cakes, coffee.

Directly following the luncheon another treat was in store for members of the club and their guests, when Miss Mauterstock presented Alexander Stacy, a native Russian, who spoke on "The Woman of Soviet Russia."

Mr. Stacy, now a naturalized American citizen with an American name, spent all but the last 14 years of his life in Russia. He was a millionaire, belonged to the nobility and had all life could offer until the government confiscated everything for the benefit of the state.

"In the early days under the rule of the czar women of the lower classes had no rights or privileges. Their status was much the same as the Chinese women of today," he said. "Under the new government women and men have equal rights in all things. However no one had any individuality now as everything belonged to the government, which decided what work each one should do, where and how one should live," he concluded. At the end of the address the speaker answered questions concerning his personal life and gave some of his views on Russian education.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Clever, These Firemen.

Newberg, Ore.—The well on Fred Shick's farm had been pumped dry by the Newberg fire department but the house was in ruins and the barn still blazed. So the fire fighters used several cans of milk to save the barn and outbuildings.

Just a Little Oil.

Dallas—Officers and employes of an automobile appliance house were startled when seven prohibition agents surrounded their place and swarmed in as 1,500 pounds of lubricating oils in 13 cans arrived for delivery. After examining the contents of the cans the officers left. Company employes said the officers had trailed the grease all the way from St. Louis.

There are Smiles.

Indianapolis—James Smiles smiled at several clerks in downtown stores who cashed checks for him, but not at two smiling men who met him at a bank. They took Smiles to detective headquarters where they said he admitted issuing fraudulent checks.

Dug Coal in Yard.

Sharon, Pa.—Instead of going down cellar and shoveling coal out of the bin, in Sharon, they can go out in the yard and shovel it out of a hole.

One man, digging in his garden, "struck coal" four feet down. He mined several tons. A neighbor, growing envious, dug up his whole yard. He's excavated 22 tons.

Big Run on Woodpile.

Meadville, Pa.—Determined to solve the "tramp problem," Meadville started a municipal wood pile, telling transients they'd be fed if they chopped and sawed for half an hour.

So many responded that the town ran out of tools. The Salvation Army is campaigning to raise more saws and axes.

Ladies May Yell.

Granville, O.—Now it's all right for Denison University co-eds to "whoop it up" at football games.

"Cheering is unladylike," Denison rulers decreed years ago when the co-eds petitioned for equality with the men in noisemaking.

But a dean of women, Helen Olney, in a new ruling says, "It is altogether proper for women to support their team."

Wild Bill vs. Hot Dog.

Oklahoma City—Governor William Henry Murray is a powerful orator, but he refuses to compete with the lowly wiener.

Refusing to address a barbecue crowd, "because I do not wish to be surrounded with lemonade and hot dog stands," the governor added:

"I have made it a rule never to make a political speech at a picnic. You listeners don't know what you've said after you get through. I might speak if all the hot dog stands were a quarter of a mile away from me."

Attorney Van Winkle.

East London, Cape Providence—A solicitor has slept through a legal slump in the Transkei district.

Finding that no clients came to him, he bought six pairs of pajamas, laid in a bale of literature, and settled down to read and sleep until better times came.

He wore his pajamas for three months on end. The only time he got up was when he wanted to remake his bed, eat, or see of there were any letters.

Now natives have started to call oall on him for legal advice, and he has decided to order a new suit.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MISSIONARY SOCIETIES

The annual meeting of the missionary societies of Trinity M. E. Church will be held Thursday, October 13, at 7:45 p. m., in the lecture room of the church.

An especially interesting program will be presented.

The speaker will be Mrs. Stephen W. Ryder, who has had several years' experience as missionary in Japan. Mrs. Ryder speaks in Japanese costume. A delightful musical program will be given, featuring Prof. Leonard Stine, soloist, and Miss Phylis Brodhead, pianist.

The Young Women's Club will give a home mission demonstration, and the junior organization will also take part.

All members of the church are cordially invited to attend, and enjoy the program, also the social hour which will follow.

DOWN WENT HER HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

20 Points She Says Feels 100% Perfect

Fat people who have high blood pressure will be glad to know what Kruschen Salts did for Dorothy Williams of Omaha, Neb.

Here is her letter written Mar. 6, 1932—you ought to read it:—

"I have had trouble with my back and high blood pressure, and was always tired and was twenty pounds over weight.

"I tried two bottles of Kruschen Salts and lost five pounds in one week.

"The pain has stopped and blood pressure is 20 points down, and now I can get around much quicker and feel 100 per cent perfect.

"Thanks to Kruschen Salts.

"I will always recommend Kruschen Salts. I take the salts to lose surplus weight. It's just wonderful."

Furthermore millions of people the world over—lean people—thin people—all kinds of people take Kruschen Salts for constipation, sluggish liver and headache—it helps to put vigor and ambition into the indolent and makes them who take the "little daily dose" gloriously alive and active.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at McBride Drug Stores or any drug store anywhere.

There were 13 pupils in the group. Parents are requested to cooperate with the school authorities in working toward a high attendance record.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Seymour and Miss Irene Hyatt served on the refreshment committee at Clintondale Grange last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harcourt entertained the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fraser of Plattekill on Sunday.

A few local residents witnessed the ball game at Modena diamond on Sunday between the Plattekill Firemen and the Grangers. The score was 12 to 7 in favor of the Grangers. This was the final game of the season.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stock market recovered substantially in quiet trading today, after sweeping recession of the past week.

The recent selling appeared to have spent its force at the opening, and prices recovered 1 to more than 4 points in many issues. During the third hour, a number of issues slipped back a point or two, but the list hardened again in the early afternoon. Bonds also improved.

Such issues as American Telephone, Union Pacific, American Tobacco B, Case, and Eastman rose about 3 to 4 points, then slipped back a couple of points, only to encounter fresh support on the reaction. U. S. Steel lost part of a 2-point rise. Miscellaneous issues up 2 or more during the morning included American Can, American Smelting, International Harvester, du Pont, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Northern Pacific, North American, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse.

Brokerage quarters were in a somewhat confused state of mind over the market. The advance was felt to reflect short covering to a substantial degree, but some fresh buying was reported, both from domestic and foreign sources. Foreign business was not large, but buying orders were felt generally to be exceeding selling orders. The dollar was again firm in the foreign exchange market.

Corporate news included the announcement that Nash Motor had ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, although for its quarterly period ended August 31, earnings amounted to only 6 cents a share. Reports from the automobile centers indicated that extreme quiet was still prevailing, and it was felt that substantial revival would not be seen until active production of new models gets under way late in the year. General Motors dividend action due in a few weeks, was the subject of considerable conjecture in Wall Street.

Court Adjourns Until Thursday

Supreme court adjourned at noon today until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Wednesday being Columbus Day.

The negligence action brought by Theresa Leader against M. Kaplan was concluded and sent to the jury at 12 o'clock. At the time of adjourning court the jury had not reached an agreement and Judge Bliss called the jury back to the court room and directed that a sealed verdict be returned at the opening of court Thursday. The action is one in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages for a fall at the Kaplan Furniture Store on Crown and North Front street in July of 1930. At that time she was in the store to make a purchase and in going down two steps into the office she fell fracturing her leg at the ankle.

An inquest was taken in an action brought by Philip Van Etten of Saugerties against Hudson Valley Lumber Co., Inc., an action on a check. Mr. Van Etten testified that on February 5, 1931, he sold to the defendant an electric motor for which he received a check in the sum of $250. The check has never been paid. The court directed a verdict in the sum of $275.25, the amount of the check and interest to date. George F. Kaufman appeared for plaintiff. There was no defense.

Testimony was taken before a jury from two out of town witnesses in an action in replevin brought by General Motors Acceptance Corporation against Clarence C. Dunham of Shandaken. The plaintiff seeks to recover possession of a Buick car which is now possessed by defendant. The car was sold to one Ennist and later taken over by Dunham. Plaintiff claims that under the usual conditional sales contract title to the car remained with the Acceptance Corporation to which the contract of sale was assigned by the Kingston-Buick Company which company sold the car.

Joseph Besch, Jr., and Charles W. Walton appear for the plaintiff and Frank W. Brooks for the defendant. After the two witnesses had been sworn an adjournment was taken until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and the jury was instructed to form no opinion or discuss the case until it was finally submitted.

Before the case was taken up plaintiff by leave of the court amended the complaint to conform with the rule. Mr. Brooks had previously moved to dismiss the complaint on the grounds that it failed to comply with Rule 271.

Judge Bliss announced that next Monday he would call the equity cases in order that some arrangement might be made for such cases to be disposed of during the last week of the trial term. He suggested that where possible attorneys have equity cases referred to official referees in order to have cases disposed of with the least possible delay. He also stated that at the opening of court Thursday when there was plenty of jurors present he would give counsel in inquest cases an opportunity of disposing of them and clearing them from the calendar.

Bait Ready For Drive On Rats

The Farm Bureau has mailed a letter to all of its members enclosing an order card for the special co-operative rat bait prepared by the U. S. government to be used in the "drive on rats", Monday, October 31. Orders can be placed by anyone interested in exterminating rats, they need not be members of the Farm Bureau according to Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau. If any organization wishes to put on a "drive on rats" at the same time, the Farm Bureau will be glad to co-operate and furnish the government bait at cost, providing the orders are received by Monday, October 17.

To date orders for several hundred packages have already been received. It is expected that several thousand orders will be received by next Monday. The bait is prepared by the U. S. Biological Survey and 35 counties in New York state are cooperating in the campaign. There are three flavors in each package, which satisfy the most prudent rat. A bit of each kind is placed at each point you wish to bait. One package is sufficient for the average sized farm and enough for two or three homes.

The bait is practically harmless to cats, dogs and poultry but extremely toxic to rats and mice. It is somewhat improved over the bait distributed last year. A package, consisting of the three flavors is sold by the Farm Bureau at cost, which is 50 cents.

Advance Orders Necessary

Only sufficient bait will be ordered to fill advance orders received. The bait will be delivered to various distributing points in the county, those who have placed orders can call for it on October 27, 28 or 29. A list of the distributing points was included in the letter to Farm Bureau members. Others who place orders will be notified as to where they can get the bait at some local place.

Because of the migrating habits of rats, the drive will be much more effective if everyone will set the bait out on the same night. Therefore, Hallowe'en night, October 31, has been chosen to spread the "feast for rats." The Farm Bureau asks the cooperation of everyone in carrying out this plan, thereby exterminating a much larger number of rats.

Rats Are Costly

According to a survey of over 5,000 farmers, rats cost an average of $40 per year. This does not take into consideration the seven or eight human diseases which have been known to be carried by rats. In the aggregate it is estimated by the government that the losses from rats in the United States amounts to over $200,000,000. Each rat eats about $2 worth of food a year. The Farm Bureau drive is therefore of economic importance to everyone. A fifty cent investment in bait may save $40.

Canfield Spoke to Franklin Lodge

Franklin Lodge, No. 37, Knights of Pythias, held its first meeting last night at its new quarters in Mechanics' Hall. Delegations were present from New Paltz, Highland, Port Ewen, Saugerties and Alligerville. Among those present was the new deputy grand chancellor for the 15th Pythian District, Edmund J. Moore of Hope Lodge of Port Ewen. He outlined plans for the district for the coming year with the objective of increasing the membership and also the activity of the various lodges. He emphasized the duty of the lodges and members to help out Pythian brothers who are unemployed or who need assistance.

Another speaker was Past District Deputy Jacob J. Donovan of Highland, who stressed the need for the membership to serve fraternalism by being practical and helping to meet the requirements of brother members in distress. He pointed out that the order since its inception had contributed millions of dollars to aid members and their families in need, and that one of the main objectives in carrying out the principles of the order of friendship, charity, and benevolence was to always respond to the flag of distress when displayed by the family of any member. Another speaker was Past Deputy George Garrison of Alligerville. He complimented the loyal members of the various lodges of the district who had kept their respective lodges in successful operation during these difficult times. Past Deputy Donovan was notified during the evening that he had been appointed by the Grand Chancellor as a member of the Returns and Credentials Committee of the Grand Lodge.

The main speaker of the evening was Deputy Supreme Chancellor Palmer Canfield. He gave a complete report of the Grand Lodge session held at Saratoga in July and of the Supreme Lodge held in Kansas City in August. Deputy Canfield reported that the order had been honored in the election of County Judge Willard M. Kent of Ithaca as grand chancellor of the state, and of the Hon. Robert Waterman, corporation counsel of Ogdensburg, as grand vice-chancellor, and also in the election of James Dunn, president of the Cleveland Trust Company, as supreme chancellor, and the Hon Reno S. Harp, one of the leading citizens of Maryland as supreme vice-chancellor. Deputy Supreme Chancellor Canfield reported on the important changes made in the Supreme and Grand Statutes. He reminded the members that since the institution of the order over two and one-half millions of men had enrolled under its tri-colored banner, and that Pythian history had been one of great achievement. That while the order had suffered the past several years the figures for the past year showed more initiations and new members comparatively than the loss by suspension.

Deputy Supreme Chancellor Canfield called particular attention to the wonderful work carried out in the Pythian Home at Ogdensburg. This home consists of a beautiful building with hundreds of acres of land bordering on the St. Lawrence river. The home is open to members of the order and their wives. The order in this state has $275,000 invested in the home with an endowment of $150,000. The difficult times of the past couple years has caused the home to be filled for the first time, and it contemplates to erect a large addition this coming year. The Pythian Sisters of the state are planning to erect in the future a home for orphan children of members of the order in this state.

After talks by other members of the order, some of whom had not attended the lodge for a number of years, refreshments were served and all departed inspired with the constructive remarks of the speakers.

Looted by Locksmith

By the simple method of standing near the entrance to the local theater and noting those who entered, a locksmith of Cheste (Valencia), well known and respected in the town, was able to carry out for several years a series of robberies without detection. His successful career has ended because it occurred to a spectator to return home during the interval, only to find "his friend and locksmith" burgling his safe. The locksmith's dexterity and the fact that he never took more than a part of the money or jewels he found, usually gave rise to the suspicion that a servant or some member of the family was responsible.

The bride was charming in blue crepe and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Linacre, was attired in a gown of beet-root, and carried white carnations. John Clearwater, the bride's brother, was the groom's best man. After the ceremony which was performed by a Newburgh minister, a wedding dinner was served, and later in the afternoon the happy couple left for a honeymoon to Lake George. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Avery will make their home in Newburgh. They were the recipients of many pretty and useful gifts.

It was also voted to hold a bicentennial banquet on November 7. The paper for the afternoon on "Psychological, Sociological and Geographical Factors of International Relations," which had been carefully and most interestingly prepared by Mrs. Graham, was read by Mrs. Rice because of the absence from town of Mrs. Graham. Today 153rd Anniversary Of General Pulaski's Death

Brig. General Pulaski

General Casimir Pulaski, Polish soldier who fought in the Revolutionary war for this country's independence, is dead 153 years, today being the anniversary of his death and the passing of one whose memory will always occupy a prominent place in United States history.

Kingston has a fine memorial of Pulaski in the picture of the general which hangs in the State Museum on the Senate House Grounds, Fair street, and of which the above is a copy. The picture was presented to the museum at appropriate ceremonies in Kingston High School three years ago. Judge A. T. Clearwater accepted the portrait in the name of the museum.

The program at the high school was arranged by members of Immaculate Conception Church and Conrad J. Heiselman, prominent American Legion man, at the request of President Hoover who asked that Pulaski's memory be kept throughout the nation.

Pulaski left Poland in 1772. In France he met Benjamin Franklin, who recommended him highly to General Washington, writing to Washington that he was an officer famous throughout Europe for his bravery. Although only 29 years old when he landed in Boston, his reputation proved so well justified that after the battle of Brandywine Congress made him a brigadier general and placed him in command of the cavalry. The young officer gave generously of his personal funds and brought great skill to the troops under his command.

Pulaski gave his life in defense of American liberty. Severely wounded off Savannah, he was placed on the warship Wasp in Charleston and died October 11, 1779, as the vessel was passing out to sea. In keeping Pulaski as a place-name throughout the union, Americans are perpetuating the memory of a man who typified the ideal of all immigrants from Poland—Service to the new country even at the risk of death.

As part of the services at the high school, an oak tree was planted on the campus. The tree was furnished by Kingston Post, American Legion.

SUPERINTENDENT VAN INGEN ENDORSES SCOUT MOVEMENT

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 5, 1932.
Mr. William A. Wright,
Scout Executive,
Kingston, N. Y.
My Dear Mr. Wright:

For many years I have watched with interest the Boy Scout movement in our country.

I believe its program is one of sound character building. It fits into the life of a boy at a period when he has the "call" for the out of doors, and when he readily responds to the appeal of service for others. When responsibilities are placed upon a boy at this age, it is his nature to put forth every effort to measure up to the responsibility. I think this is the keystone of Scouting, the keynote of character building.

Money used in activities leading to character building in boys and girls is invested in securities that do not default and do not pass dividends.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. C. VAN INGEN,
Supt. of Schools

Midnight Fire at Furniture Plant

Oily rags used to polish furniture and kept in a wooden barrel ignited at midnight and the heat generated caused the sprinkler system, with which the Schilling Furniture Company, Inc., plant on Deyo street is equipped, to start operating, extinguishing the fire at the source.

The night watchman sent in a still alarm to the Kingston fire department who responded to the call and found that the fire was practically extinguished when they arrived.

The damage by fire was very slight, and there was some water damage.

This morning the damage had been cleaned up and operations were resumed as usual at the plant.

RAID ON AMERICAN DOLLAR IS REPULSED

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Another ill-fated raid on the American dollar apparently has been repulsed, causing considerable confusion to foreign speculators who last week sold the dollar short.

Action of the principal foreign exchanges shows that virtually all declines suffered last week by the dollar in terms of European gold currencies were recovered at the start of this week.

Bankers attributed the setback of the international speculators to a growing realization that, however difficult was the situation in this country when it was called on early this year to ship gold to Europe, the dollar today is more firmly moored to the gold standard than ever.

"A hollow echo of the past," was the way one banking authority described the latest selling of the dollar. He said similar efforts had been made early this year to fairly good advantage to the short sellers. But since the United States shipped abroad all foreign owned gold demanded of it, a movement which ended last June, the country now is in such impregnable position that no important gold drain appears likely.

Darr Loses Crown To Stevens In Slow Legion Feature Bout

Capacity Crowd Sees Outdoor Boxing Season Close Inappropriately—Two substitutions and Two Emergency Matches Necessary.

The heavyweight championship of the Amateur Federation of Sports Clubs changed hands at the American Legion stadium, which was packed to capacity, Monday night when Joe Stevens, hard-punching Brooklyn negro, was awarded the decision over Vic Darr, slugger from Bristol, Conn., in the feature that climaxed a poor show and brought the outdoor boxing season to a close.

Little action was shown by the principals until the last two rounds, during which Darr, the champion, was knocked down three times by his colored opponent. Darr tried a number of times to connect with seemingly powerful but aimless punches, leaving himself open to the heavy hitting negro.

The loss of the title by Darr was a complete surprise to those who have seen him fight in cities nearby, where he easily outpointed such men as Jack Sullivan, who can stand plenty of punishment, and Willie Barrow, once considered the ace of colored boxers in this vicinity.

Darr was signed to appear in the feature here after Matchmaker "Doc" Studer saw him trounce Barrow in Poughkeepsie last week and was very much impressed with his style of fighting.

The weights were Darr 176, Stevens 176.

Armento Defeated

Tony Armento, Bristol flatic expert, who impressively defeated Joe Pincus and Johnny Raymond, local boxers, bowed in defeat to Joe Rodriguez of Brooklyn, substituting for Pedro Vener, a stablemate, in the six-round semi-final. Armento fought his best in the third round, but in the other frames took a neat boxing lesson from the negro, who conceded considerable in weight advantage.

Paradise Comes Through

Otis Paradise, clever little Brooklyn lightweight, cuffed Nick Basso of Bristol about the ring for the greater part of two rounds then had his hand raised in victory by Referee Bill Singer when his sturdier looking rival could not go on for the third chukker.

Trought Victorious

Jerry Trought, "Orpheum Slugger," knocked out Duke Wade, 155 pound colored boy of this city, in the second round of their scheduled four framer. Wade took the place of Tommy Law, Cementon, who failed to appear. Trought dropped Wade with a hard right near the end of the first round, but the bell saved him. He came out of his corner dazed for the second session and was finished with another hard right before Timer George N. Brown's watch reached the one-minute point.

Other Results

Mike Budzinsky, Polish lightweight of this city, knocked out Walter Post of East Kingston in 46 seconds and then met Kid Miller, another Kingston boy, who decisively defeated him in an unscheduled bout, but one of the best slugfests of the card.

Kid DeCicco, 123 and Tommy Williams, 120, both of North Rondout, sent in to put on an emergency bout were ordered out of the ring and their match called no contest before the first round ended.

Max Kohler of the Forst Packing Company and Jimmy Bowman of Esopus fought a draw in a four rounder that showed plenty of slugging.

Judges were Harris Brown and J. Finnerty; referee, Bill Singer; timer, George N. Brown; announcer, Samuel J. Riber.

Army-Pitt Game Features Saturday's Football Schedule

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Two of the east's major football powers, Pittsburgh and Army, are paired off in a duel at West Point Saturday that should go far toward determining whether either can be reckoned a contender for the mythical national championship.

Both elevens are tackling schedules so difficult that an undefeated season clearly would entitle them to consideration for national honors.

Pitt, beaten only by Notre Dame last year and considered on a par with any eleven in the east, apparently has another brilliant array featuring the speedy halfbacks, Warren Heller and Paul Reider. The panthers already have trounced Ohio Northern by 47 points, West Virginia by 40 and Duquesne by 53 without permitting any of their opponents to score, but now face the prospect of seven hard-bitten rivals in a row. Army, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Penn, Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford.

Line May Not Hold

Pitt's weakness, if any, lies in a line shattered by the graduation of most of the stalwarts who made the Panthers so rugged a defensive outfit last year. But Coach Jock Sutherland long has been known as a fashioner of air-tight forward walls and his linemen have performed right up to the Sutherland standard so far this year.

Army has lost a great back in Ray Stecker but Major Ralph I. Sasse has plenty of backfield talent to choose from among Ken Fields, Tom Kilday, Roland Elliott, Felix Vidal, Paul Johnson, Travis Brown, Bill Prentzel and Joe MacWilliam. The Cadets were unimpressive in their opening 13-0 victory over Furman but turned in a smooth performance against Carleton last week to win, 57-0. After the Pitt game, Army will play Yale, William and Mary, Harvard, North Dakota State, West Virginia Wesleyan, Notre Dame and Navy on successive Saturdays.

Pitt walloped the Cadets last year, 26-0, but there is every prospect of close, hard-fought action this time.

Other Games

At least two others of the East's undefeated and untied teams are certain to wind up on Saturday with a spoiled record for New York University and Georgetown will battle in the Yankee Stadium in New York and Dartmouth and Pennsylvania will clash at Philadelphia. None of these has been checked yet. Brown and Yale, both undefeated, will meet in the Yale bowl but Yale, although it has escaped defeat, already has been twice tied, by Bates and Chicago.

Other interesting frays are in prospect between Princeton and Cornell, Lafayette and Colgate, Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson, Columbia and Virginia, Navy and Ohio University, perhaps the strongest of the Buckeye Conference outfits, Holy Cross and Detroit and Syracuse and Southern Methodists.

Porcelain Tooth

Artificial porcelain teeth were made in France as early as 1774, but were not introduced into this country until 1817, when Dr. A. A. Plantau arrived in Philadelphia from Paris.

Army Prepares For Pittsburgh Contest

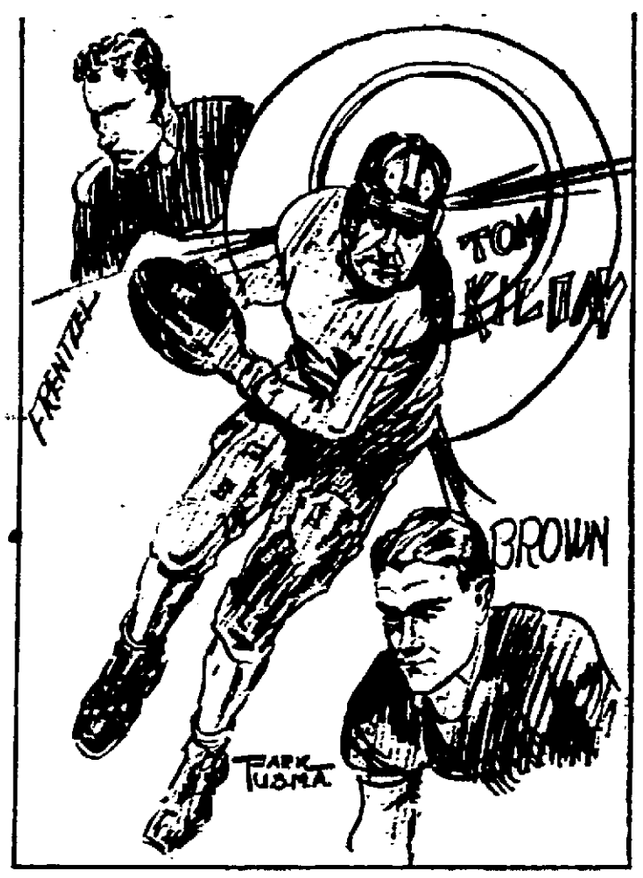

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Hard work confronts the Army football squad this week as Major Ralph I. Sasse, head coach, makes final preparations for the Pittsburgh game here next Saturday. Reputed to have a stronger team than last year, when the "Golden Panthers" won the championship of the east, an atmosphere of determination pervades the West Point practice gridirons. The visiting team is expected here Friday morning and will establish headquarters in the West Point Hotel. In the afternoon Jock Sutherland, head coach, will give his charges a brisk workout in the Michie Stadium.

With the redoubtable "Bulldog" Reider, captain of Pitt and right half-back, playing beside "Fats" Heller, a triple threat man, the best scoring combination of the east will be in action. How to meet their constant threat is the task confronting the Army mentors during the few remaining practice days. This pair runs and passes, and Heller is a great punter.

In the line, "Irish" Tormey, 180 pound center, has been an outstanding factor in the games played by Pitt this season. "Buster" Evans, Army center, is certain to have a busy afternoon.

While Sasse will devote considerable time toward perfecting the Cadets pass defense, Armys' only weak spot in last season's Pitt game, he will not overlook the necessity of strengthening his inexperienced line. With only one regular guard, "Milt" Summerfelt, from last year's strong team, available, "Fats" Ellinger, Army line coach, is concentrating on Lincoln, Jablonsky and Armstrong of the first string forward wall, with Winn, Gooch, Stillman and Hutchinson receiving almost as much attention.

Army's Hopes Against Pitt

HEAVY HITTING FAST RUNNING ARMY BACKS

West Point, Oct. 11.—On plunging Tom Kilday, the hard hitting "T N T" Brown and the elusive Bill Frentzel will rest a large portion of the Army's hopes in the Pittsburgh game here next Saturday (October 15th). Pitted against what is probably the strongest team in the east, Army is keen to avenge last season's defeat. Kilday, with his pile driving smashes at the line, has been a consistent ground gainer.

"T N T" Brown gained his cognomen in the hard games last season when his blocking was a feature of the Army offense. Fast and quick to diagnose plays, his sector of the gridiron will be a difficult one for Pittsburgh to attempt.

Bill Frentzel, right half back, starred in the 1930 Notre Dame game at Chicago where his punting was at least equal to that of Carrideo. In 1931 injuries kept him on the sidelines. At practice sessions and in the games to date Frentzel's speed and shifty ball carrying has been a material factor in Army gains.

PUNTS and PASSES

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh — There's no telling what the Pittsburgh Panthers will be able to do from an offensive standpoint once they start using their full repetoire of plays. Against their first three opponents, the Panthers have gained 1,300 yards, using only six running plays.

Annapolis, Md.—Rip Miller can see little but grief ahead of Navy in the Tars' battle with Ohio University. The Buckeye conference team has won 26 of its last 29 games and permitted the opposition only 60 points in that period.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Followers of Syracuse's football fortunes probably still are wondering how the Orange came to lose to Ohio Wesleyan. Syracuse gained more than 400 yards against the Ohioans yet lost, 19-12.

Princeton, N. J.—On the sidelines most of last season with injuries, Jack James, Princeton halfback flash, is getting all the football practice he can this year. The Tiger first team was given a holiday yesterday but James appeared in uniform and helped the second team beat the third eleven by three touchdowns.

New York—There's at least one speed merchant on Georgetown's team that New York University will have to watch. He's Al Kelly who as won the national indoor sprint championship.

New York—Under Lou Little's coaching, Columbia has high hopes of turning in an undefeated record this year. Since Little arrived at Morningside Heights a little over two years ago, the Lions have won four major games. His three immediate predecessors won only three major games over a span of ten years.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Old Man Stagg leads his Chicago Maroons back east early this October for a visit to his alma mater, Yale, in return for the 27-0 trouncing that little Albie Booth helped administer to them last season at the Midway.

The dean of American football coaches, or at least the co-dean if he may be obliged to share the distinction with Pop Warner, has been a long time moving his boys back among the top-flight teams on the basis of performances.

They may have been getting a lot out of the game, benefiting themselves for the future and all that sort of thing, but they have not been scoring many touchdowns since John Thomas and "Five Yards" McCarty left Chicago.

There were sufficient signs of an upward trend for the Maroon last fall, however, to justify the hope of making a much better showing against the Elis this year. Chicago was strong enough at the close of the 1931 campaign to beat Illinois and lose a couple of tough-luck decisions to the powerful Purdue and Wisconsin outfits.

The Old Man can "take it", so far as Yale is concerned, if necessary, but he would like nothing better than to direct a winning team in the big bowl at New Haven. Knowing this "his boys" will be primed to give the Elis everything they can produce in the way of gridiron stunts.

Grefe Iowa State Hope

Iowa State's football comeback under the coaching of George Veenker, credited with checking the Cyclones' two-year losing streak in 1929-30, depends considerably upon the ability of Dick Grefe to shake himself loose for the sort of runs that made him a conspicuous Big Six star last season.

Grefe is captain and quarterback of the team this year. He does the passing as well as most of the ball-lugging. Last fall he gained more ground that any other Big Six back in conference games. He should be aided this season by the blocking of Ivan Impson, former fullback who was out with a broken leg last year, and Ed Schafroth, 185-pound halfback, according to the early season reports from Ames.

Iowa State takes on Nebraska and Kansas for its first two conference games, October 8 and 15, by way of losing no time getting into the thick of the conference scramble.

Depression Bright Note

Bob Zuppke, beginning his 20th season as coach of the Illini, with a long record of championships won, is satisfied that the 1932 boys are eager to do their part toward restoring the erstwhile gridiron glories.

"This squad looks more like an oldtime Illinois bunch," says Zuppke. "They are leaner-looking, not so pudgy."

Maybe the boys haven't been eating as regularly as they were.

Drivers Defeat Cannoneers, 16-12

In a game marked by numerous strike-outs and fast fielding the Drivers carried the Cannoneers down the road to defeat last night at the armory in the "A" Battery indoor baseball league. The final score was 16-12.

The lead see-sawed back and forth, neither team being very far ahead, until the end of the game. The Drivers secured a slight advantage in the first inning and held it until the fourth when the Cannoneers pushed three runs across the plate to tie the score at 6-6. Again the score was tied in the seventh at 11-11, but in the next frame the Drivers took things into their own hands, hammering in five runs which completely demoralized their opponents. The best they could do in their half of the ninth was one run.

The score by innings:

Cannoneers	120	320	201	—12
Drivers	321	003	25_	—16

Batteries: Cannoneers—Colvin and C. Costello. Drivers—J. Costello and Ray Houghtaling. Home runs by C. Kieffer (2), H. Bush, R. Kieffer, Beehtold, J. Bradford.

The standing in the league after last night's game is:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Detail	2	0	1.000
Drivers	1	1	.500
Cannoneers	0	2	.000

Sing Sing Faces Loss of Fullback

The board of football strategy at Sing Sing prison is confronted with the loss of William (Jumbo) Morano, star fullback, for the game with the Kingston Yellow Jackets on Sunday, October 23. Morano is scheduled for parole on October 20, four days after the game with the Port Jervis police.

Morano, who is 20 years of age, is a veritable powerhouse on the attack. His playing was one of the features of the game last Sunday against the Bronx American Legion team, which lost to the prisoners, 12-0. Followers of the Sing Sing eleven are exhorting Morano to withdraw his application for the parole and remain at the prison till the end of the grid season.

In the meantime, John Law and his corps of assistants are scanning the reserves for a capable understudy to take his place in the first-string backfield when Morano leaves the fold.

Local football fans desirous of seeing the Yellow Jackets play Sing Sing within the walls of the prison may do so by communicating with Manager Lou Kantrowitz who has arranged to have several busses make the trip. They will leave about 9 o'clock in the morning.

Manager Bill Terry Starts Rebuilding New York Giants

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—"Memphis Bill" Terry has hauled out the big broom, swept four players westward to St. Louis and started a clean-up campaign that threatens to make the New York Giants all but unrecognizable when once more they begin their labors.

In a straight player trade, Terry sent Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, southpaw pitchers, Outfielder Ethan Allen and Catcher Bob O'Farrell to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Ray Starr, rookie right handed pitcher, and Gus Mancuso, young catcher.

Other deals are "on the fire," it was revealed at Giant headquarters and not a player on the team except Mel Ott and Terry himself, seems certain of remaining on the roster for 1933.

There were rumblings that the Giants were trying to do business with the Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds and one rumor linked the club in a swap with the National League champions, the Chicago Cubs. The names of Freddie Lindstrom, Hughey Critz and Francis (Shanty) Hogan were freely mentioned with the Giants casting covetous eyes in the general direction of Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, Pat Malone and Frank Demaree.

When he was signed recently to a two-year contract as manager of the Giants, Terry said he would rebuild the club from the ground up.

Awards Made in Big Fish Contest

The big fish contest which has been conducted by Sweeney & Schonger since April first, closed September 30.

Rudolph DeSilva of Boiceville won a Shakespeare rod and reel as the champion trout fisherman. The 28 inch trout which he caught July 15 and which weighed six pounds, 12 ounces after being cleaned, not only took the July monthly prize, but the prize for the best trout caught during the season.

Honors in the bass contest go to Egbert Schultz of Fair street, whose five pound bass caught July 30 took the prize for that month and also takes the season prize, giving him a Shakespeare rod and reel. His fish measured 21 inches.

Nelson Snyder of Albany avenue takes the Shakespeare casting rod for the largest pickerel of the season. He also gets a reel for the September monthly prize. His entry, caught September 7, measured 27½ inches in length and weighed six pounds, seven ounces.

The September monthly prize for the largest bass goes to Raymond Tillson of Washington avenue, who gets a Shakespeare reel for the bass he caught September 5. It measured 18 inches and weighed four pounds six ounces.

A total of 48 fish of all kinds were entered in the contest during the season. They weighed 176 pounds and had a combined length of 86 feet. There were 15 trout entered, 16 pickerel and 17 bass. Total weights and lengths of the various classes were: Trout, 46 pounds, 26 feet; pickerel, 63 pounds, 33 feet; bass, 67 pounds, 27 feet.

New York City Leads World in Realty Value

Cities of China, Japan and other parts of the Orient are more valuable than many of the leading European capitals, while New York leads the world in realty value.

This is the surprising result of a compilation by the Asia Realty company of Shanghai, China, of comparative land value statistics, covering the assessed realty values of 24 leading cities.

London, the largest city in the world as far as population is concerned, takes ninth place in the list of these cities as far as realty values are concerned. The comparisons are based on the value of a mow, a Chinese land measurement which is equivalent in area to one-sixth of an acre. The values were based on the exchange value of the gold dollar.

The 24 most valuable cities in the world from the standpoint of real estate are New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Indianapolis, Montreal, Los Angeles, Liverpool, London, Tokyo, Paris, Sydney, Berlin, Rome, Singapore, Manila, Marseilles, Cape Town, Bombay, Manchester, Buenos Aires, Shanghai, Hongkong and Canton.

Deaf Cruelly Condemned

So little was known of deafness in the golden age of Greece, that Aristotle taught that "the deaf have no souls and are little better than animals."

Philip A. Goodwin Endorses Scouting

Philip A. Goodwin, Republican candidate for Congress, is a supporter of the Boy Scout movement. In a recent letter to Scout Executive William A. Wright he endorses Scouting and the coming finance campaign in the Ulster-Greene Council. Mr. Goodwin writes as follows:

West Conaackie, N. Y.,
October 4, 1932.

"Never before, in the history of America, has there been such a call for real Americanism. Our forefathers set the standard which has produced the greatest country in the world. Our traditions contain a loyalty to our Republican form of government. On every hand, we find those who would experiment with something different. In our midst are agitators who would break down our traditions.

"If we would stop to think, a new generation is coming on. In our Boy Scouts, we have a field for education in those traditions and these young hands may guide the destinies of this beloved land of ours. Loyalty and character building are the ideals of this organization. Records prove that the training of a Boy Scout produces the type we so urgently need.

"Fathers and mothers, look into Boy Scouting. Give that boy the experience his heart craves. Give him an opportunity to come in contact with other boys whose ideals are the same. Get behind this great organization with your interest and your pocketbook. Give according to your means and with the feeling that you are doing your part in carrying on this great movement."

PHILIP A. GOODWIN.

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

THE QUACKS GROW UNEASY

PETER RABBIT doesn't like the very hot weather of midsummer any more than you or I do. He cannot go to the seashore or the mountains as we can, and just think, he has to wear a fur coat all the time! Of course in this respect Peter is not worse off than a lot of his neighbors. In fact none of them likes the very hot weather. So with the coming of the first cool days in September new life seemed to fill Peter. He loves the fall. Next to the spring he likes the fall best. But for two things he thinks he might even like it the best of all the year. Those two things are the parting with old friends who are leaving for the far away sunny Southland, or who are preparing to sleep all winter, and the fact that the fall brings the dreadful hunting season when men with terrible guns delight in spreading terror and suffering over the Green Meadows, through the Green Forest, along the Laughing Brook, around the Smiling Pool, up in the Old Pasture and even deep in the Great Woods.

"What Are You So Glad About?" Demanded Mr. Quack.

The fall is a busy time for Peter. You see there are so many friends to say good-by to that he is afraid that some will slip away before he sees them. The first of the cool days had already come and Peter knew by things he saw that it would not be long before many of his feathered friends started on their long journey. Everywhere he saw them in flocks now instead of in pairs, as he saw them in the spring. They were making up parties for the long journey, for they prefer to travel in this way. It is quite necessary, because you know there are so many young birds for whom this will be the first time to make the long journey, and they must be shown the way by the older birds. Then it always is much pleasanter to travel with company.

A great party of blackbirds flying over the Old Briar Patch reminded Peter that it was quite likely that certain other friends would soon be starting, among others, the Quack family, who had spent this summer in the pond of Paddy the Beaver. So the first chance he got Peter hurried over to Paddy's Pond deep in the Green Forest. He was half afraid that they might have left already, and he half hoped that they might decide to stay all winter. When he got there he found Mr. and Mrs. Quack and the ten young Quacks, now as big as their father and mother, still there.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" cried Peter.

"What are you so glad about?" demanded Mr. Quack, swimming in close to where Peter was sitting on the bank.

"That you are still here," replied Peter. "I was afraid you might have gone away. Are you going to take that terrible journey again this year, Mr. Quack?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Quack. "What else can I do?"

"Why, stay here all winter the same as I do," replied Peter.

"And what would we do when all the water has turned to ice, stupid?" demanded Mr. Quack.

Peter looked foolish. "I hadn't thought of that," said he. "Of course you have to go where the water doesn't freeze. Just the same I think it is dreadful that you have to take that terrible journey."

"It wouldn't be so bad if it were not for the hunters with terrible guns," replied Mr. Quack. "We don't mind the journey; it is the terrible guns. Have you seen any hunters near the Old Briar Patch yet?" Mr. Quack asked this anxiously.

"No," replied Peter.

"This cool weather is sure to bring them out," replied Mr. Quack uneasily. "I almost wish we had started earlier, but we have been so happy here this summer that I cannot bear to leave until we have to. What's that?" Mr. Quack started nervously and stretched his head up to listen. All the other ducks did the same thing. It was only the snapping of a twig under Buster Bear's feet, and in a moment he appeared.

At once the ducks dropped their heads and began swimming about again, for they did not fear Buster Bear. But it was very clear that they were uneasy, very uneasy, indeed, especially Mr. and Mrs. Quack. The young Quacks had had no experience with hunters, but they were uneasy, too. The truth is they were anxious to try their wings. They were looking forward to that long journey as something very wonderful. They were anxious to be on their way. Something inside was urging them to start for their beautiful Southland. It is often that way with the young. They did not fear because they did not know.

MANY housewives look upon left-over fish with disdain and while they would feel in duty bound to make use of left-over beefsteak or veal cutlet, they feel entirely justified in throwing away what remains from any sort of fish. All of which is absurd because there are just as many ways of making good use of left-over fish of any sort as of beef, lamb or chicken.

The first step in any left-over fish dish is to remove skin, bones and fat. To make delicious sandwiches mince the pieces of fish and mix well with well-seasoned mayonnaise. If the fish is rather oily add more lemon juice to the mixture, a few chopped capers or a little chopped pickle. Spread the mixture on slices of buttered whole wheat bread, adding a leaf of crisp lettuce to each. Fish salad may be made by separating the fish into flakes without actually mincing it. Mix lightly with mayonnaise or french dressing and serve on beds of crisp lettuce.

To flaked or minced left-over fish you may add a medium thick white sauce to make creamed fish for luncheon. If you like you may add a few dried bread crumbs to the creamed fish and put it in individual ramekins and bake until nicely browned on top. Flaked left-over fish may be added to smooth mashed potatoes formed into balls, rolled in flour or fine dry crumbs and fried in butter in a frying pan. This is appropriate for luncheon and is improved if served with well-seasoned tomato sauce.

Sun's Atmosphere

A. D. Little's Industrial Bulletin says the sun's atmosphere has been estimated to consist of about 90 per cent hydrogen, by volume; 2 per cent each of oxygen and helium, 1 per cent of vaporized metals and 5-10 per cent of free electrons. Such a weird composition is stable only at the extremely high temperature near the surface of the sun, where conditions exist which are not reproducible in our hottest furnaces.

Biggest Rattlesnake

The largest rattlesnake of which there is record is a diamond rattlesnake caught in Florida which was 8 feet 5 inches long and 15 inches through its thickest part.

Mother's Cook Book

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

WITH all the different kinds of foods talked about and recipes for using them in ways that are different, we come to molasses, the good old sweet that comes to us right from the sugar cane. Here is one to serve to youngsters that will be enjoyed:

Vitamin Salad.

Place a leaf or two of crisp lettuce on each salad plate. Place a slice of pineapple on the leaf and fill the center with New Orleans molasses. Cover with a thick slice of orange, top with a slice of apple (or a square), topped with a cherry. Just before serving pour over the following sirup: To one teaspoonful of molasses add the juice of one orange and one-half a lemon. This will serve four salads.

Veal Stuffed Tomatoes.

Take out the seeds from six tomatoes after slicing off the top. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with one-half tablespoonful of chopped onion for five minutes. Add one-half cupful of chopped cold veal, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, the tomato pulp, season with salt and pepper. Cook five minutes and fill the tomatoes with this mixture. Place in a buttered pan, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake for 20 minutes.

Pineapple Salad.

Take one cream cheese, three-ounce size, one-third of a cupful of walnut meats, the same of raisins cut into bits, make into small balls. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves in the center of a slice of pineapple, add a spoonful of mayonnaise and a spoonful of whipped cream. Garnish with dates cut into quarters. Add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to the four slices of pineapple.

Tea Ice Cream.

Take one cupful of milk, three egg yolks, one cupful of sugar, a bit of salt, one half cupful of strong tea infusion, one cupful of thin cream, two cupfuls of heavy cream. Freeze and add two cupfuls of whipped cream, and finish freezing.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "A successful Calamity." Another George Arliss vehicle, which means superlative acting, a comfortable plot, and cleanliness from the first reel to the last. Again the picture belongs completely to Mr. Arliss, although a splendid supporting cast contributes some fine acting. This talkie is the story of a rich man, who returns from abroad to find his entire family too busy with social affairs and sport to have any time to remain at home. He learns from his indispensable valet that "Only the poor stay home," so he goes about in a nice way of becoming poor. How poverty changes the outlook of his wife and children is interesting screen fare. Supporting Mr. Arliss in this talkie are Mary Astor, Evelyn Knapp, Hardie Albright, and William Janney. Recommended to everyone.

Orpheum: "Million Dollar Legs" and "The Man Who Came Back". The first, a comedy riot filled with many laughs and crazy antics, shows how a little nation won the Olympic games through a series of novel devices. "The Man Called Back" with Conrad Nagel and Doris Kenyon is the story of a doctor who sinks to the depths, only to rise again when a woman convinces him that he isn't a failure.

Broadway: "Divorce in the Family." Unravelling the divorce problem with a cast that offers Jackie Cooper, Lois Wilson, Conrad Nagel, and Lewis Stone. It's a modern story of today, in which divorce plays a prominent issue. Its effect on the adult as well as the child is brought to the attention of the audience.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Lightnin'". Will Rogers does some of his best work in this famous and familiar story from John Golden's stage success.

Broadway: "Roar of the Dragon". Richard Dix in the star role, supported by the beautiful Gwili Andre, is splendid in this exciting talkie of Chinese bandits and oriental intrigue. The show moves along at a mad pace from start to finish, with numerous fights, and plenty of thrills. Wesley Ruggles directed, and the supporting cast includes Arline Judge, Edward Everett Horton, Zazu Pitts, Dudley Digges, and Henry Gordon. This show will appeal to young and old.

The higher we soar the smaller we appear to those who cannot fly.

Women are jealous creatures. They are even jealous of their own sexes, for no woman will allow her nose to shine in society.

Eve must have had a very dull time, after all. There was no other woman to be jealous of her.

Fable of Soul Food and Other Kinds

By GEORGE ADE

(© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.)

ONCE it came about that Prof. Ginkus of Dewberry College went out to Runnerville to deliver a Lecture on "The Modern Drama," with which he was familiar, having attended the Theater twice, Season before last. Following a sacred Custom, the Club under whose Auspices he was to hold forth billeted him on Mr. and Mrs. Wadleigh, who were the Sacred White Antelope of the Village, because Mr. Wadleigh had invented a Farm Gate which brought in so much Currency that for several Years he had been compelled to wear a Collar.

The Wadleighs had a pressed-brick Mansion with a driveway curving up to the Port Cochere and it was said to be furnished regardless.

Prof. Ginkus was assigned to a Guest Chamber altogether too lovely to be used for Sleeping Purposes. It had Ribbons run through Everything and there must have been 6 or 8 Mattresses on the Bed. Also three kinds of Talcum Powder: Violet, Extreme Violet and Sickening Violet.

When he appeared for Dinner it was his Hope that they could slip him a Lettuce Sandwich and a Cup of Weak Tea as he always wished to lecture on an Empty Stomach, preferably his own. But the Wadleighs were not going to miss such an Opening. They had invited in Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Harper, of the State Bank, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Griggs, of the Emporium Department Store, and Miss Gertie Bloomer, who was unmarried and about 30 Years late on the Schedule.

The serried Ranks of Knives, Forks, Spoons, Nail-Files, Nut Picks and Other Utensils indicated only too plainly that they were going to throw themselves and try to fix Prof. Ginkus so that he wouldn't be able to lecture for a Week.

He inwardly resolved to lay off on the Chuck and put in the Time getting Opinions from those influential Men and Women on the revision of Church Discipline, the teaching of Evolution in the Public Schools, the failure of Home Training in the Control of adolescent Apaches and other such timely Topics.

The Gorge was ushered in by a Combination known as the Dyspeptic's Delight, consisting of buttered and salted Nuts, vulcanized Caviar and Green Olives stuffed with Torpedoes. Presently the regular Menu and the Intellectual Feast were started off with:

Cream of Tomato Soup.

Mrs. Wadleigh said she never knew whether to serve Thick Soup or Thin Soup because some like One and some like the Other. Personally, she preferred a Puree although Dr. Kennedy had told her it was fattening. To which Mrs. Harper replied that she had tried a Soup at a Hotel in New York, during the Automobile Show, and it was the best she ever tasted but she couldn't remember the Name. Mr. Harper said he thought it began with a "P." So, having that all settled, nothing was heard for several Minutes except the soft pedal Inhalation which cannot be entirely muffled, even in the most Polite Society.

Baked White Fish With Cucumbers.

Miss Bloomer wondered whether she had better tackle the Fish. She had heard so much lately about Ptomaine but, of course, probably it would be all right if the Fish were fresh. Mr. Griggs said he thought they would be safe because Lake Superior was only about 500 Miles away. This led Mr. Wadleigh to tell about his Cousin Homer, in Chillicothe, who couldn't eat Sea Food or anything that lived in the Water without becoming as sick as a Pup. So Mrs. Wadleigh said she had a Sister who got a Rash, all over, when she ate Strawberries. She couldn't understand it at all but Mr. Griggs helped to clear Things up by saying that he had often heard his Father say that when he (Father) was a Boy it was generally supposed that Tomatoes were poisonous, whereas it is now agreed, in the Medical Profession, that nothing could be more beneficial to the Liver. He said he never turned down Fish but he was leery of Cucumbers. Some could eat them and Others couldn't. That had been his Observation. He had a brother, Jesse, who used to go right out in the Patch and take them Raw, without Salt or Anything. Mr. Harper said that yes, Some People were that way. They seemed to agree with him better if he put on plenty of Vinegar and Pepper. He didn't know why it was but such were the Facts in the Case. This reminded Mrs. Wadleigh that one of her Uncles up in New England had choked to death at the Table from getting a Fish Bone in the Gullet. She said he had been a Unitarian.

Baked Fowl With Dressing.

Mrs. Wadleigh said that she hoped every one liked Sage in the Stuffing because she was crazy about it but was always half afraid to tell Minnie to put it in because Some liked it and Others didn't. Mr. Griggs said that Minnie couldn't make him mad if she put in Onions too. He liked Onions any way he could get them—raw, boiled or fried. He said he liked to take a Big Bermuda Onion and slice it thin and make a Sandwich. He said he first saw Onions served that way at a Stag Party in Springfield. He had been taken to the Party by an old Friend who used to sell Goods out through this Territory and up to the Time he went to the Party, which was a Kind of Dutch Lunch, including Everything that went with it, he never had seen or heard tell of an Onion Sandwich, but after he tried one he certainly had to admit that it was mighty tasty, especially when you could wash it down. Miss Bloomer then asked if there would ever be a chance for Light Wines and Beer to come back. It looked as if the Interchange of Ideas might become involved in the controversial Mazes of the Eighteenth Amendment if the Help had not appeared to shift the Scenery and make way for an Edible which Mrs. Wadleigh was utilizing in an Effort to lift her Friends and Neighbors to Higher and Better Things.

Artichokes and Mayonnaise.

Mr. Harper spoke up and said he never looked at one of these Things that he wasn't reminded of the Story about the Fellow who had one of them set in front of him and he thought it was a Pine-Apple. Mr. Harper did not remember just how the Story went but he said you couldn't blame the Fellow very much. He said he never would forget the first time he saw one. It was at a Banquet in Atlantic City. The Chambers of Commerce were having a big Convention there. Mr. Harper had not planned to be present.

He just stopped over, on his way to Philadelphia to see about an Order that was held up, and on the Board Walk he met Ed Bentley who once worked as a Telegraph Operator in Runceville but is now in charge of one of the biggest Commission Houses in Columbus. Ed asked him to go to the Banquet. He didn't want to go because he didn't have his Tuxedo with him, but Ed borrowed one from a Friend who had intended to go to the Banquet but couldn't on account of getting a Cramp while in Bathing.

To get back to the Artichoke, he waited to see what the Others were doing with theirs before he made a Move. He said it seemed to him then, and it had always seemed to him since, that an Artichoke was a fair Imitation of Something to Eat. If some Folks said they really cared for them, he was not disposed to argue with them. His Motto had always been "Every man to his Taste," as the Fellow said when he kissed the Cow. He said that unless you dipped an Artichoke in something, it didn't taste like Anything whatsoever. It was just the same as taking a Long Breath. He always pulled his apart and sort of nibbled at it, just out of Politeness, but one good Thing about the Artichoke was that it never showed up until a lot of good Vittles had preceded it. So that was that.

Ice Cream and Cake.

Miss Bloomer said that her Father, before his Death, would eat Ice Cream five or six Times a Day if he could get it. He was the first Person in Middlebrook to use it, right along, in the Winter Time. Mr. Griggs said that he liked Ice Cream as well as the Next One but when you ordered it at a Candy Store you never knew what you were getting. It had everything in it except Milk and there was no way of telling how long it had been on hand. Which reminded Mrs. Wadleigh that she had found the Recipe for the Fig Cake in a magazine.

Cheese, Hard Crackers and Coffee.

Mrs. Harper said that even a Small Cup of Black Coffee would keep her awake for Hours and Hours. Her Mother had been the same way but her Father could take it by the Quart and it never seemed to Affect him one Way or another. He would be asleep 5 Minutes after his Head hit the Pillow. It was a Funny Thing about Coffee. Some could drink it and Others couldn't. Miss Bloomer said there was an old and true Saying that One Man's Food is another Man's Poison. Mr. Griggs said that in New Orleans they make the Coffee very strong. Personally, he didn't like it so Strong. In New Orleans, however, they wouldn't have it any other way. Mrs. Wadleigh told them the Cheese was Imported. She forgot the Name but it was Imported.

Intermission.

After Prof. Ginkus arrived back at Dewberry he was asked by his Wife if he had been nicely entertained and he replied that they had kept him so busy thinking about Things to Eat that he did not remember what had been served.

Women Not Far Behind Men in Inventive Field

While the first American invention was patented by a man, the records further state that the process was "found out by Sybille, his wife." This patent was granted by the British government to Thomas Masters for an invention for cleaning and curing Indian corn. For 19 years after the enactment of the patent law in 1790 not a single one of the 10,000 patents issued was granted to a woman. The first successful application from a woman was recorded in 1809 and was for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread. Even for a quarter of a century afterward there were less than a score of patents granted to women. Women have patented inventions relating to power machinery, a belt drive, a flexible shaft coupling, a solar heating plant, a reversible turbine, automobile contrivances, machinery for harvesting ad planting, kitchen and household appliances.

Founder's Day At Y. M. C. A.

Monday was Founder's Day at the local Y. M. C. A., and "open house" was held throughout the building, and special programs were held. In the afternoon, the Ladies' Auxiliary entertained the mothers in a special program. A splendid program of music and recitations had been arranged, and a short address was given on the work of the association.

Early in the evening the exhibits arranged attracted quite some attention. In the main lobby, the Stamp Club had a splendid display of stamps, cachets and covers taken in nearly every country of the world. The boys' division exhibit of articles made at camp was also interesting, and gave quite an insight into the work of the boys at camp. Articles of leather, cellophane, brushes and rope were displayed.

The program on the gym floor opened with orchestra selections played by the following: Clifford Van Valkenburgh, Earl Van Valkenburgh, Seymour Coutant, violins; Harold Baltz, Wallace Buley, cornets; Howard Stephens, saxophone; and Miss Marion Coutant, piano.

Then Carlton N. Foster, physical director at the "Y," had his gymnasium classes of boys put on a short exhibition of drills, calisthenics and apparatus work.

The invocation was then pronounced by Clarence S. Schoonmaker, general secretary of the association, after which the assemblage sang "Faith of Our Fathers."

The first speaker on the program was the Rev. Goodrich Gates, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who spoke on "Sir George Williams." He told of the splendid, untiring work of the first founder, and the effect of his work on the young men. He gave in closing a brief, interesting summary of the life of Sir George Williams.

The Youth Council double quartet, consisting of Miss Eleanor Lawatsch, Miss Freida Neibergal, Miss Hermine Lawatsch, Miss Phyllis Eastman, Donald Morris, Henry Van Der Zee, Donald Clark and Harold Darling, sang "Are Ye Able, Said the Master," and "Stand Up For Jesus."

Clarence S. Rowland, president of the association, paid tribute to the original founders of the local branch, and also to the work being carried on at the present time.

Paul Cahill, chief of the Friendly Indians, and N. H. Fuller, big chief, told interestingly the work of that club.

The Cosmopolitan Club presented a pageant "For Peace." Henry Van Derzee, Kenneth Garrison, Glenn Young, Ellsworth Haines, Aaron Dornbush, Harry Gumaer, Alexander Rosenzweig, took part.

Henry Van Der Zee then sang a spiritual, "Go Down Moses."

A radio play, "The Boys of Yesterday," broadcast to the gymnasium through the courtesy of Jay N. Vanderlyn, was then given by members of the Hi-Y Clubs. The young men and women were stationed below the gymnasium, and sent their voices to the gymnasium through the Vanderlyn amplifying unit. The story they told was most interesting. They showed the life of London for the average young man in 1844, taking particularly the life in the Hitchcock & Rogers firm where George Williams was clerk. The play continued until the first meeting of the group which formed the association.

The closing number of the program was the magic program given by the president of the Triangle Club, Fred L. Van Deusen. At the close of the meeting, the Ladies' Auxiliary served light refreshments to their guests, and a most pleasing evening came to an end.

The committee in charge of general arrangements was as follows: Pearl H. Carey, Mrs. George H. DuBois, Mrs. D. N. Secore, Fred L. Van Deusen, Stanly M. Winne and Chester A. Baltz.

Lake Erie

The Eries were a numerous tribe of Indians who occupied the shores of the lake, which takes its name from them. The name in Indian means "wildcat."
